

Judge Says
Indictment
Won't Hold Charged in SLA
License Scandal

NEW YORK (AP) — Criminal Court Judge Benjamin H. Schor, accused of taking part in an attempted liquor license shake-down, says an indictment against him "will not stand impartial scrutiny in a court of law."

Schor, 61, was indicted Friday by a Queens County grand jury on two counts of attempted grand larceny, one count of conspiracy to commit grand larceny, and one of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Also Indicted

Indicted on identical counts was Jack Brodsky, a Brooklyn race horse owner and operator of a used car lot. Brodsky allegedly tried to collect $5,000 — an amount said to have been cut to $2,500 — from the prospective operators of the Imperial Inn, Richmond Hills, Queens.

Brodsky was arrested Monday on a charge of attempted extortion and grand larceny. He is free in $2,500 bail for a hearing Nov. 29.

Judge Schor, who served as a deputy commissioner of the State Liquor Authority from 1955 to 1959 when he was appointed to the bench, said: "I am innocent of the charge that has been made against me. It is my intention to insist on an immediate trial at which time I shall be vindicated."

Waived Immunity

The Brooklyn judge waived immunity and spent about an hour and a half in the grand jury room. He was released in his own recognizance.

The grand jury also was believed to have indicted another man in the same case, but that indictment was sealed and the name of the defendant was not disclosed.

The indictment accused Schor, Brodsky and an unnamed accomplice of conspiring between last July 1 and Aug. 21 to extort money from one of the Imperial Inn's owners by falsely informing the owners that their

Driver Burned
In Propane Gas
Fire Last Night

A propane gas fire that could easily have developed into a major catastrophe was confined to a small area Friday night when flames burned out the interior of a tractor-truck cab at the Terwilliger Brothers plant on Albany Avenue and sent the vehicle's operator to a local hospital.

Converging on the scene of the fire 10:30 p. m. at the Town of Ulster gas and appliance establishment were members of Ulster Hose Co. No. 5, men from the Ulster County Sheriff's Office, Town of Ulster constables and State Troopers from the Lake Katrine barracks. Fears that the fire might get out of hand were laid to rest when quick action by those involved kept damage and injuries at a minimum.

Refer Accused
In Bank Break-in To Grand Jury

A 23-year-old Upstate youth arrested in connection with an alleged burglary at Kingston Savings Bank, 273 Wall Street, and a break-in at St. Joseph's School, today waived preliminary examination at arraignment before City Judge Hubert A. Richter.

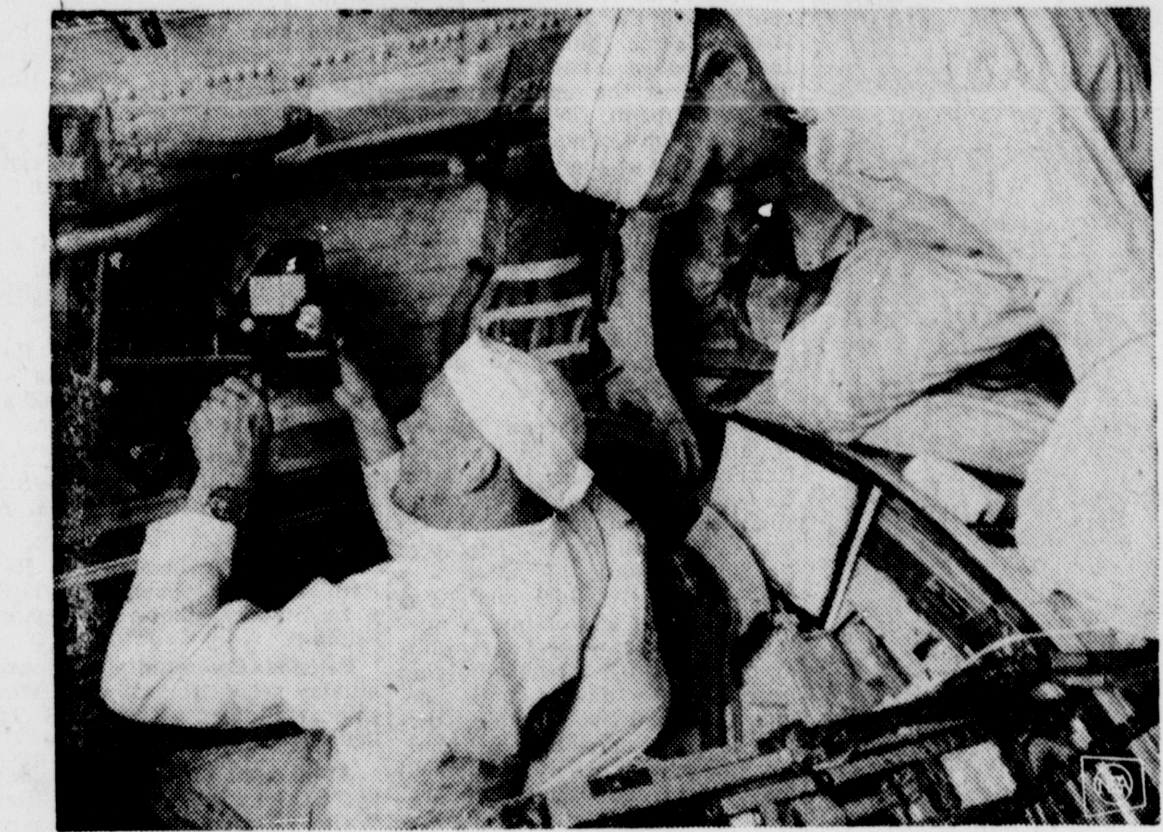

Donald E. Casterlin, a laborer, of 27 Division Street, Amsterdam, appeared in court with Attorney Joseph Avis, court-assigned counsel.

Go to Grand Jury

The case was referred to the grand jury for further investigation and the defendant was remanded to jail without bail.

Casterlin was arrested at gun point at the Uptown bank by Detective Leonard Ellsworth Thursday night after the man had been spotted inside the bank by Officer George Barringer, who was on assignment at a fire which occurred in the Old Dutch Church.

Barringer and Ellsworth went to the bank after the officer reported he had seen someone inside the building. Other officers in the immediate vicinity converged on the bank and the detective called to the alleged burglar through a rear basement building and Casterlin was (Continued on Page 6, Col. 6)

Expect Johnson, Mac Talks
To Cover Funds, Troop Need

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, holding some of the keys to a possible wartime tax increase, discusses defense spending and Viet Nam troop needs with President Johnson today at the President's ranch.

The Texas White House said Johnson wanted to meet with McNamara to review the Manila conference, to talk about diplomatic efforts to arrange a Viet Nam peace and to consider the most recent reports from Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U. S. commander in the war-torn country.

Westmoreland's requests for additional troops, and the war's impact on defense outlays, seemed certain to dominate the conversation, however.

Johnson has said repeatedly, most recently at his news conference Friday, that McNamara's efforts to hold down military spending, despite the war, will play a big part in the tax decision.

Another element is the level of appropriations passed by the now-adjourning Congress, a matter which Johnson said is being studied. The state of the economy is a third factor, and that seems to be heading in a direction that makes a tax hike less likely.

Westmoreland told the Manila conferees that more U. S. troops will be needed in Viet Nam. As is his custom, Johnson said such requests will be considered as they reach his desk — and that the nation will apply such force as is deemed necessary to stand by the forces already on the scene.

Down at Ranch

The President will be at his ranch, some 80 miles north of here, for at least several weeks. His doctors have urged him to rest before surgery to remove a polyp growth from one vocal chord and to repair a hernia.

The incision made during his gall bladder-kidney stone operation a year ago.

Doctors are expected to operate before Thanksgiving.

George Christian, a White House assistant, said Friday Johnson will fly here Monday for X-rays and laboratory tests at the Brooke Army Medical Center.

In response to a question, Christian said consideration was being given to performing the survey at Brooke — a location handy for a holiday recuperation at the ranch.

Johnson also let it be known he will confer at the ranch Sunday with Secretary of Welfare John W. Gardner. It was said they'll talk about administration plans to seek an average 10 per cent increase in Social Security benefits and a forthcoming program to promote better nursing homes.

Finds Selective Purchases
Of Food Generates Savings

By ELIZABETH RITCHIE
Buffalo Evening News

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Be penny-wise instead of pound-foolish when supermarketizing. It pays off!

I tried it and proved it works—to the tune of $7.92 on savings on the food bill.

Fortified with food ads, some helpful suggestions from store managers, two shopping carts (one for penny-wise and the other for pound-foolish purchases) and an itemized list of 19 grocery items, I began my shopping spree.

By comparing prices, buying store "specials" and choosing house brands (items packaged or canned by the store itself) I bought almost $22 worth of edible items for less than $14. My pound-foolish cart, piled high with non-specials, totaled exactly $21.87 while the penny-wise one, filled with specials, tallied up to $13.95.

All purchases were as near in weight and quantity as I could find. The list included cereal, flour, instant coffee, tea bags, margarine, peanut butter, bread, cranberries, carrots, vams, apples, turkey, beef liver, sliced bacon, frying chicken, orange juice, potato chips, cheese and skimmed milk.

But does the average home-maker-shopper spend the time to shop comparatively and take advantage of sales and specials offered by the store?

"Not as much as she should," one manager said. "But the housewife who does shop selectively instead of impulsively (Continued on Page 9, Col. 7)

Gaynor Lauds Local
Facilities for Aging

Kingston will become a city where all its citizens who need it can count on good housing at moderate cost in their retirement, if the city broadens its sights and gets into three new programs established to further expand accommodations needed for the aging in years to come.

That was an encouraging message from James William Gaynor, New York State commissioner of housing and Community Renewal, delivered Friday afternoon at dedication ceremonies of Wiltwyck Gardens, Albany Avenue.

Rocky Sends Message

Commissioner Gaynor was principal speaker at the ceremonies which were attended by upwards of 100 public officials, business people, clergy and residents of the communities of Ulster County. Gaynor represented Governor Nelson Rockefeller, who had been scheduled to appear but sent a telegram to George E. Yerry Jr., chairman of the Kingston Housing Authority expressing his regrets at being unable to attend the ceremonies.

Yerry officiated at the ceremony and assisted Commissioner Gaynor and Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan in unveiling a plaque on the main building at the project.

Gaynor said there are some 40 Housing Authorities in New York State and Kingston Housing Authority is top on the list for its achievements. He commended Yerry and Alexander Yosman, director of the housing authority, and city officials for their accomplishments and efforts in completing such projects as Colonial Gardens and Wiltwyck Gardens.

Praises City's Progress

The commissioner emphasized that Wiltwyck Gardens is one of the newest examples of low-rent housing for senior citizens, and said that Kingston has already taken advantage of most of the assistance offered by the state up to now, including more than 2,000

Confirm Merger
Of Local Firms
In $300,000 Sale

A business transaction, involving more than $300,000, has resulted in the merger of two local firms, Bob Beaumont, Inc., 515 Albany Avenue, and Bernal Sales Co., Inc., East Chester Street Extension. The merger was effective Nov. 1, according to an announcement released today by Robert G. Beaumont, president of Bob Beaumont, Inc., who will now head the total operation of both businesses.

As director of the combined operations, Beaumont hailed the new linkup as a "natural combination" and said the tie-in would make "total and complete service" available to a seven-county area.

He noted that Bernal Sales is one of the largest, if not the largest, sales companies in the entire area involved in custom auto accessories work. He called it the "only complete upholstery (Continued on Page 6, Col. 6)

Tuesday's Election Gives Promise
Of See-Sawing Returns in Ulster

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA
Freeman Staff Writer

By and large, Tuesday's general election will be the breath-holdingest, slambangingest, go-for-broke competition between candidates ever offered locally. It will also be the most interesting from both a spectator's and voter's point of view. And it may just possibly be one of the closest on record.

In a sense, of course, it is always now or never in any election, and every candidate must give his all. There is only one election—this one—and it may change everything. In the context of today's politics, the shining hour is the present hour and there is really no practical way for a man to win the next time out, or the time after that.

The Congressional race in this 28th District for a seat in the House of Representatives in Washington is a prime example of this. For the first time, there is an ironic juxtaposition for the office. Never before has the Republican candidate been on the outside—looking in. Never before has he actually had to go begging for votes among his own constituents. But this is precisely the strange and unfortunate position in which Hamilton Fish Jr. finds himself. These facts must add weight to his heaviest burden: from time immemorial, the 28th Congressional District was traditionally Republican until two short years ago. The GOP claimed it by a strength that bordered almost on divine right and, with a peculiar and paradoxical justification, the party reeled under the stunning blow of having it wrested from its grasp . . . has been plotting and planning ever since to get it back in the fold.

Conversely, for the first time, the Democratic candidate is in. He is the incumbent and, in the hard, cold light of factual politics, this gives him the edge. But, in the case of this one party (Continued on Page 6, Col. 5)

Flow Ebbs
In Italy's
Big Flood

2 Cities Under
Mud, Power Out

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — The waters of the worst floods in Florence and Venice since the Middle Ages receded today, leaving the two museum cities blackened with mud and without vital public services.

Thousands of rescue workers struggled through slime dotted with debris and stained with fuel oil. Streets became bogs and buildings were coated with mud below the second-floor level.

Not as Damaging

"The war, the entire last war, did not cause as much damage as the waters of the Arno River did yesterday," said Florence Mayor Piero Barcellini.

As the Arno River settled back into its bed at Florence and Adriatic Sea waters flowed out of Venice, other Italian cities remained inundated or became flooded.

Landslides, violent winds and floods — part of a huge storm that battered all Western Europe — took more than 40 lives in Italy alone.

The U. S. Embassy in Rome said it had no information about Americans in the flooded areas but added that there was no indication so far that any foreigners were among the victims.

In southern Austria, floods killed at least 11 persons. Dozens were missing and feared dead in the European storm and hundreds were injured. Destruction was incalculable.

Add Up Damage

As the floods began ebbing at dawn, authorities in Florence, the Renaissance art center of 450,000, and Venice began adding up what they feared was immense and irreparable damage to priceless cultural relics.

Some 50,000 relief workers, aided by dry weather after almost two days of rain, joined local volunteers to aid more than 100,000 Italians left homeless (Continued on Page 6, Col. 1)

List Registration Figures
For County, Two Districts

Registration figures for New York State, Ulster County and various districts were announced this week by Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo.

The total for the state 8,117,944 is compiled from reports filed with the Department of State by Boards of Election in the State's 62 counties. It is down by 76,965 from the 8,194,909 registered to vote last year, but an increase of 225,942 over the 7,968,967 registration for the 1962 gubernatorial election.

As usual, women registrants continue to outnumber men in New York State. Of the 8,117,944 registered throughout the State this year, 4,225,110 are women, 3,892,834 are men.

The figures compare with 4,250,428 women and 3,944,481 men registered last year and 4,050,263 women and 3,841,739 men registered in 1962.

There are 13,170 voting districts in the state for this election, compared to 12,831 last year and 12,276 in 1962.

The New York City registration this year totals 3,510,121—1,847,958 women and 1,662,163 men.

Upstate, 4,607,823 persons are registered—2,377,152 women and 2,230,671 men.

Past experience indicates that about 6 million votes will be cast Election Day, Nov. 8. The usual drop between the registration figures and the vote is from 15 to 25 per cent.

The 99th Assembly District embracing all of Ulster County has a total registration figure of 68,479. The male and female breakdown is listed in the tables below.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

In his paintings Fra Angelico has expressed his faith for all to see for the past 500 years. Of all the Italian Renaissance painters Fra Angelico was truly divinely inspired. In his lifetime churches and cathedrals vied for his works. He gave his pictures of the life of Christ and other religious paintings a fresh beauty and new meaning.

Very little is known of Fra Angelico's origin. His Christian name was Guido and he was also known as Fra Giovanni of Fiesole. He was 20 when he received the habit of the Dominican order. The name Fra Angelico (meaning angelic) was given him because of his devout piety. It has been told that he never picked up a brush until he had prayed for guidance. He believed that God guided his brush. He knelt as he painted the Madonna and wept each time he painted the crucifixion. For over a hundred years the accepted image of an angel has been that of one of Fra Angelico's. Both in his gentle life and in his art he has given us a rich spiritual heritage.

Ridge Methodist Pastor to Attend General Conclave

REV. BRUCE CARLSON

Pastor of the Stone Ridge Methodist Parish, the Rev. Bruce L. Carlson, will serve on the page and usher staff for the special session of the General Conference of the Methodist Church. The General Conference will meet in Chicago from Nov. 8 through 11 at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. The General Conference is comprised of approximately 800 delegates representing the Methodist Church throughout the world.

This special session of the Methodist General Conference will consider only one item of business; the merger of the Methodist Church with the Evangelical United Brethren Church. Discussions have been going on in earnest between the two denominations since 1960. The Methodist Church has 11 million members and the EUB Church about 750,000 members.

These two denominations have very similar origins and are almost identical in their governmental structure. If the General Conference approves the merger, it then goes for approval to the more than 90 annual conferences for their approval. If the plan makes it over these hurdles in the Methodist Church and similar ones in the EUB Church, there will be a uniting conference in Dallas, Tex. in 1968.

Miss. Strongmen Face GOP Threat

By JAMES SAGGUS

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Sen. James O. Eastland, the strong man of Mississippi politics for nearly a quarter century, faces the first real Republican threat of his career in Tuesday's election.

Eastland, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and a leader of segregation forces in Washington, is opposed for a fifth term by Rep. Prentice Walker, the state's first GOP congressman since Reconstruction days.

'The Walker Way'
Walker has campaigned from the Gulf Coast to the Tennessee border with this billboard message: "Defeat LBJ the Walker Way."

President Johnson's civil rights stance and his Great Society domestic program are hotly controversial in Mississippi. Walker concentrates on trying to show that Eastland is not sufficiently anti-LBJ.

"Eastland is closer to Lyndon Johnson than any man in Washington," Walker says in speech after speech.

Committee Blocked CR Bills
Eastland cites his seniority and committee assignments, saying that the Judiciary Committee which he heads blocked 127 civil rights bills.

The senator also stresses that a move by Mississippi away from its traditional one-party political system could wreck the state's conservative forces by dividing them.

Most observers rate Eastland as ahead in the race.

However, in the 1964 presidential race, Mississippi went Republican for the first time in its history, sweeping Walker into office and giving GOP presidential candidate Barry Goldwater 87 per cent of its vote.

Both Eastland and Walker attack the President's Viet Nam policy as weak. Both attack domestic programs. Both vow fierce resistance to the administration.

So it would seem to boil down to which man can most effectively charm the voters and which has the most potent organization.

In their shops at the Manhattan Shirt Company and Gants Company, workers took up collections.

The committee members for the project were Miss Mary Coughlin, Mrs. Helen Purcell, Mrs. Anne Tierney, Mrs. Bertha Boisvert, Edward Ahl, Mrs. Mae Martalto, Mrs. Esther Haughey and Mrs. Marjorie DeGraff.

Death Cause Unknown

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — It may be 10 days, the Erie County medical examiner's office says before doctors can determine the cause of death of an infant girl, whose body was found in a shallow grave.

An initial autopsy Friday on the body of 3-month-old Shari Mobley gave no indications on what caused her death. Further tests were ordered, but the results will not be known immediately, doctors said.

Shari's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Mobley, both 20, of Monroe, Mich., were arrested Monday by police in Ephantia, Wash., on charges of passing fraudulent checks, police here said.

While undergoing questioning, they added, the couple admitted that the had buried the child in a wooded area near the Buffalo suburb of Hamburg in July after she died in a nearby motel.

Police quoted the Mobleys as saying Shari died of natural causes. Her body was found Thursday after a three-day search.

Evangelical Group Elects Officers; Opposes Lottery

The Hudson Valley Evangelical Ministerial Association meeting at the First Church of the Nazarene in Kingston elected officers for the ensuing year this week.

The association named as its president, the Rev. Wes Wales, club director of Hudson Valley Youth for Christ. The Rev. Mr. Wales is well known for his work among teenagers in the Kingston area.

The Rev. Patrick R. Vostello of the Reformed Church of the Comforter will serve his second term as vice president of the organization. Secretary for the coming year is the Rev. Donald J. Morgan of the Watson Memorial Baptist Chapel. The pastor of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, the Rev. George B. Osborne was elected treasurer. Named to continue in their present office were the Rev. Robert Vinson of Bethel Assembly of God as publicity chairman and the Rev. Osterhout Phillips of Shokan Reformed Church as chairman of the association's radio ministry.

To Expand Ministry

The current radio outreach of the association in cooperation of radio station WGHQ is Morning Meditations presented each Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday morning at 6:25. Pastors of participating churches bring a devotional word of encouragement for the day. The new president said that he would like to see the radio ministry expanded in the coming year.

An associational meeting is planned for Tuesday evening, Nov. 22 to look further into this matter as well as expanding the activities of the association to serve a greater number of people and churches in the Hudson Valley. The association presently represents 26 churches of 12 denominations in the greater Kingston area.

Unanimously Opposed

Also affirmed at the meeting was the association's position in opposition to the proposed statewide lottery. The clergymen in the unanimous declaration urged the voters concerned for the well-being of the state to vote No on item number 7 on Nov. 8.

Among many reasons the ministers cited the following as their strongest objections to such a proposal:

"For economic reasons. The only state to have a lottery is Nevada. Of every $1 raised in Nevada's lottery, 52 cents went for administrative costs. The $5.4 million collected during the first two years was $2.6 million below what was expected. To raise $500 million per year predicted in the claims of New York's lottery supporters, $1 billion worth of tickets must be sold; at $3 each, 333,333,333 tickets would have to be bought; that is 20 tickets, costing $60 for every man, woman, and child in the state.

Cite Ethical Reasons

"For moral reasons. Nevada today, where gambling is a way of life, has the highest crime rate of any state in the country. Reno and Las Vegas regularly top the FBI's list of cities with the most crime per capita. Las Vegas has twice the homicide rate of New York City. The overall crime rate for Las Vegas is more than double that for the rest of the nation.

"For sociological reasons. Nevada has the highest per capita federal assistance of any of the 50 states. Gambling is a parasite feeding on both the individual and society.

"For Biblical reasons. The attempt of gambling to make profit out of the inevitable loss and possible suffering of others is the antithesis of that love of one's neighbor on which our Lord insisted."

Mission Series Starts Sunday at Alliance Church

A special mission series will be conducted Sunday through Wednesday at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church with the Rev. Malcom M. Sawyer and Miss Lorna Monroe as guest speakers.

Leaving his home in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, the Rev. Mr. Sawyer had the unfortunate experience of having to study three languages before he could preach in one.

Soon after going to the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tibetan Border Mission of Kan-su, West China, the country fell prey to the rapid Communist advance and the Sawyers were sent to Southeast Asia to study French, the basic language of the missionaries for all that area. Later they were asked to go to Laos to work with the Khamou people in the urban areas and the Meo tribes of the mountains. Located just a few miles west of the Viet Nam border, much of these areas are under Communist control. The Communists consider Christians their greatest enemy.

The Rev. Mr. Sawyer will tell of his experiences on the field during the missionary convention in the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, 131 Franklin Street, each evening from Sunday, Nov. 6 through Wednesday, Nov. 9. The pastor, Rev. George B. Osborne, and the congregation cordially invite the public to attend.

Nazarene Church Schedules Series

Guest speaker at a special series of services Nov. 7 through 13 at the First Church of the Nazarene, Elmendorf Street at Wiltwyck Avenue, will be the Rev. John R. Donley.

The evangelist is a former semi-pro baseball player. Services will be held 7:30 p. m. throughout the week.

The Rev. Thomas H. Younce, Nazarene Church pastor, extends an invitation to the public to attend.

FISH FOR CONGRESS

Hamilton Fish Jr., Republican candidate for Congress in the 28th District, a moderate, faces three opponents, Joseph Y. Resnick, incumbent, Democratic and Liberal candidate; Jean Hervey, Conservative; Eric Lindbloom, Peace.

Fish has stated his position on major issues including those of inflation control and tax policy, agriculture, Hudson River and pollution, Viet Nam and general foreign policy. His views seem to express the wishes of the rank and file Republicans in this five-county district.

The next Congress will face an unprecedented challenge in both domestic and foreign matters. Inflation and the high cost of living constitute by far the most important economic issue confronting the American people on the home front. Inflationary policies have slashed the value of the dollar, dislocated the economy and increased the burden of taxes.

Fish believes Congress must come to grips with inflation. What is needed is an all out frontal attack on inflation, to cut government spending which is non-essential and get our economy moving again. He is opposed to the free-spending policy of the current Congress which is overwhelmingly Democratic.

On the foreign front, there are many vital decisions still to be made. Fish believes the United States has an obligation to exercise its position as a world power in such a way as to insure the peace of the people of the world. He says the Johnson Administration has brought about a breakdown in this role. The United States was a global power under the Eisenhower Administration and today we are caught between old policy and no policy.

If we are to put a halt to this free-spending policy and establish a solid, realistic foreign policy, there must be a better balance in the Congress. Furthermore, we don't believe the political views of this district are being represented now in Congress.

The only way to affect a change is by electing Hamilton Fish and other moderate Republicans to Congress.

NO PRIVATE ARMIES

The arrest of Minutemen in the New York metropolitan area, together with confiscation of weapons with which they allegedly intended to attack private camps in three states, including those in Ulster and Dutchess Counties, further emphasizes a couple of important points. One is that there is no place in our society for a clandestine group bent on using arms in furtherance of political ends. The other is that no more congressional delay in enacting gun control legislation ought to be tolerated by the public.

It was quite an arsenal that the Minutemen had accumulated: rifles, machine guns, bazookas, rocket launchers, grenades, bombs, pistols and other death-dealing items. Whether these right-wing extremists did in fact intend to use such weapons in an attempt to "devastate" privately owned camps in New Jersey, Connecticut and New York, as authorities charge, is a matter for courts to decide. There is no doubt that the arsenal was not assembled merely for Sunday afternoon fun and games.

Utterance of political views, however reprehensible they may seem, has the protection of the Constitutions' free speech amendment. Building up an arsenal for a sort of private army that trains for use of weapons against those who hold other views—that is something quite different, and cannot be sanctioned.

The other matter is that these wild-eyed people somehow got their hands on all those weapons and a couple of million rounds of ammunition. They might still be able to do so if a federal gun control measure such as the Dodd bill were made law. But their chances of doing so would be less, and the chances that they would be identifiable as purchasers would be greater, if such a law were on the books.

This Minutemen episode, like numerous other gun episodes before and since the Kennedy assassination, underscores the need for reasonable control over sale and

Now that Red China has successfully tested a guided missile with a nuclear warhead the question is where do we go from here?

Mao Tse-tung's announcement that the test was made came hardly as a surprise to the United States and Russia since both nations keep China's nuclear progress under constant surveillance. But its timing was of historic significance.

It was Mao's answer to the Asian conference in Manila and to the anti-Chinese conclave of Communist chiefs in Moscow. It was his warning to America and its allies in Asia and to the Soviet bloc of nations to shed all illusions about China's weakness. It was in fact Mao's reminder:

● That China, despite internal economic and political troubles, is the strongest military power in Asia.

● That there can be no peace in Viet Nam without the consent of Peking.

It emphasized the utter futility of current Russian-American efforts to reach an agreement banning nuclear weapons without taking into consideration Red China and its nuclear potential.

Above all, it created the urgent need for a complete re-thinking of U.S. policy on such basic matters as:

● Admission of Red China into the United Nations to give Peking an opportunity to break out from its isolation.

● A "two-China" policy involving the recognition of the Peking as well as the Nationalist government of Taiwan.

Admittedly these are controversial issues. They are contrary to consistent American policy running through Democratic and Republican administrations since 1949.

The political risks involved in the debate on China have made President Johnson reluctant to generate a search for new ideas.

State Department officials are thus deriving some comfort from the fact that the missile the Chinese have tested is of only limited range. It can presumably strike nearby Russian targets but it is as yet far from an intercontinental rocket.

But the same "experts" underestimated Russian nuclear capability in the 1950s and they seem to be making the same error in the case of China. In international relations wishful thinking and illusions are always a dangerous substitute for reality.

Mao Tse-tung, with or without nuclear weapons, will hardly remain a passive onlooker when he finds himself blockaded by the United States in alliance with Russia. China believes she can sacrifice 200 million people and still emerge victorious in a nuclear war.

Indeed, some specialists on communism warn that any delay in reaching at least a live-and-let-live agreement with Mao Tse-tung until China becomes a major nuclear power will leave the United States with hardly any room for diplomatic maneuver.

In their view, now is the time for the United States to take advantage of the rift between Red China and Russia and start to negotiate with Peking.

Paradoxically, some of communism's bitterest foes have been turning over such thoughts in their minds.

One thing is certain: There will never be any hope for peace in Viet Nam or Asia while the Chinese, ever suspicious, remain sulking in their isolation.

More important, should Mao Tse-tung suddenly disappear from the scene and Russia and Red China become reconciled — such possibility can never be ignored by American policy makers — the United States would be left in a most uncomfortable trap.

Your Mouth 'Tells' on You
To a Discerning Dentist

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Remember when daddy could look into your eyes and see exactly what things you did? Daddy's magic was short-lived. It wasn't long before one discovered that mommy was putting the finger on you.

Some daddies have now been superseded by psychiatrists who usually employ more sophisticated methods. And do you know by whom else? You guessed it—dentists. Your dentist spends many hours with you and sees you under the most trying circumstances. He learns lots about you.

A mouth examination by an alert dentist often reveals many telltale signs that may reflect your personality. For instance, if the biting surfaces of your teeth are worn in peculiar patterns, and many flat, polished facets are in evidence, it's quite obvious that you're a bruxist or teeth grinder. Since teeth grinding is due, in part at least, to emotional disturbances, it suggests that you are under stress, a condition that is often magnified by even the most simple dental procedures.

If you are a woman whose front teeth are rough and irregular, with a number of tiny notches in the biting edges, you're a thread biter. Men with similar notched biting edges are likely to be fishermen who impatiently bite leaders when tying flies.

One avid fisherman wanted to have his front teeth crowned with sharp-edged stainless steel so that he could cut leaders neater and faster.

If the outer edge of your tongue is serrated so that the notches correspond with backs of teeth you're a tongue thruster. This also may be an emotional symptom.

If the mucous membrane lining cheeks looks as though it's been through the meat grinder, you're a cheek biter. Maybe your wife is giving you a hard time because it seems that more men than women are cheek biters.

Many dentists maintain they can detect alcoholics by the "look" of the mucous membrane lining the floor of the mouth. The big giveaway, of course, is "green tongue." Some alcoholics think they can camouflage Martini breath by sucking chlorophyll tablets. This not only produces a more distasteful odor, but a green tongue even looks vile.

It's a dentist's duty to recognize these signs and symptoms so that he can comfort a patient when comfort is most needed, when a kind word, a distraction, or sometimes not saying anything, may make the difference between a dental session torn by fear and anxiety and one which can be said to be almost pleasant.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

NEW STATUES FOR OLD

Many a town square is poorly graced with a dirty grey statue that once shone resplendent. The trouble is that stone not only weathers but takes on a disreputable patina from smoke and auto fumes and the like—a patina that is hard to remove.

Which brings us to the point that, in New York's Kew Gardens the other day, the marble figures of "Civic Virtue" emerged gleaming from treatment with a compound that has been widely used in France to restore public buildings to their original beauty. It's a thought for those who would like to see that town monument to the war dead, or to some cherished historic figure, shining in the sunlight as it used to.

possession of firearms Congress should quit stalling, shrug off the pressure of the firearms lobby, and take sensible action.

"You Should Sit Down and Talk to These Fellows!"

Washington News

PORTLAND, Ore. (NEA)—A few political lunch players in Oregon think that Gov. Mark Hatfield has so much residual strength after eight years in office that he probably cannot be bested in his race for the U. S. Senate against Democratic Rep. Robert Duncan.

One Republican leader, though mindful of polls which gave Duncan a narrow lead with a considerable "undecided" factor, says:

"I am confident Hatfield will win. I think the margin is going to surprise some people."

Democrats, enjoying a 5-to-4 voter registration margin in the state, believe for their part that Duncan will take it if they can just get their people out next Tuesday. They count heavily on a weekend visit from President Johnson to provide the crucial spur.

Cautious Hatfield strategists do indeed fear the consequences of such a trip. But the GOP leader quoted here dares to suggest that some of the sluggish Democrats, if spurred to vote, may turn out to be Hatfield voters.

The governor's dovish Viet Nam position is obviously a handicap. But he evidently has succeeded in blurring its effect. Oregon voters, anyway seem far less interested than the national press in the "Viet Nam referendum" aspect of this particular election.

The hawkish Duncan, a restless fellow who writes notes to himself on the heel of his hand, admittedly got into the race solely to represent the President's Viet Nam policies against the critical Hatfield. Yet this has forced him in to a "Johnny One-Note" posture that appears to weary many Oregonians.

At 44, the handsome but somewhat prim Hatfield seems uniquely qualified to override his stance in Viet Nam. In an age when most two-term governors and some one-termers are quickly covered with scars, his skin has hardly been broken. Says one party official:

"In some ways he is less scarred now than when he was elected governor after a hot nomination fight in 1958."

The "residual thing" Hatfield has going for him is more than a matter of a progressive record independently appraised as good (despite some carping), more than a matter of a progressive as a good (despite some carping), more than a matter of women, young people and church folk admiring him for his good looks and "niceness."

A tout with the governor in the Oregon hinterland demonstrates that he has managed to get himself not only very well-known but also warmly liked as a person.

When he walked into a bowling alley in the town of Shady, not far from towering Mt. Hood, half a dozen women's bowling teams greeted him as an old friend. There was less starchy-eyed adulation than solid "good to see you, we're for you."

At high schools, the cheers go beyond normal youthful high spirits.

This is the more remarkable since Hatfield is not easily outgoing. (He says he's shy, his critics say cold and aloof.) The young laughter is a bit thin as he commends a school band and essays a mild joke:

"As a former clarinet player, I can appreciate what it means to get a reed wet this early in the morning."

Sometimes called a loner, the governor nevertheless is getting left.

Feels Tuesday Voting Won't Give Clear View on Viet Nam

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Everything that a President does or says is usually evaluated in terms of political gain or loss. Mr. Johnson's trip to Asia would not have been associated in any way with a possible political motive if he had made the journey in the last two weeks in November instead of in mid-October just before the Congressional elections.

It will, in any event, be quite a challenge to the politicians to figure out just what were the advantages or disadvantages of Mr. Johnson's Asian journey in terms of domestic prestige or help to Democratic Congressional candidates. For the fact is a substantial majority of the voters are not too familiar with Asian problems. They are more concerned with what is going on inside the United States and are worried about the cost of living and inflationary trends.

It is true that the Viet Nam war has been more or less of an issue. But when the election results are counted next week, it will still be anybody's guess as to whether the position of the administration in the Viet Nam war was upheld or rejected or ignored as a factor in the voting.

For there are three groups with views of the Viet Nam war—those who want to see it stopped altogether and American troops withdrawn, those who want to see the war escalated and maximum power applied, and those who think that the President's course of feeling his way in the hope that the Communists will come to the peace table is all right. But there will be no way to measure which of the three blocs actually casts the most votes.

Many of the candidates for Congress individually have refrained from taking positive positions, and have expressed themselves in the vaguest and most abstract terms. There are, of course, voters who have persons of draft age in their families and who would like to see the war ended at once. But it may be doubted whether this would be a controlling reason for voting either the Republican or Democratic ticket, because neither party has defined explicitly what it really wants the President to do in Viet Nam.

Mr. Johnson unquestionably added to the prestige of the United States in the world by his trip to Asia. He made a dramatic appeal for peace. When a President travels 30,000 miles to visit countries which never see the head of the American government, there is bound to be widespread discussion of the visit. On the whole, despite the few demonstrations that were unquestionably instigated by the Communists, Mr. Johnson was given an enthusiastic reception.

Perhaps the most significant results of his tour of the Far East will not become apparent immediately. It is hoped, of course, that the emphatic expression of interest in the peace and welfare of Asia, together with promises of economic as well as military aid, will make a deep impression on the peoples of the whole region. Generally speaking, the trip was good publicity for the American cause in Asia. But so far as the progress of the war is concerned the President's journey is not likely to have much influence on the North Vietnamese. As long as the Hanoi government is backed up by the Soviet Union and the Red Chinese regime, the Communists will persist in their mistaken belief that the United States will get tired of it all and pull out.

Viewed solely from a domestic political point of view, Mr. Johnson may help to diminish some of the protest, as many persons will feel that his trip showed he is doing his utmost to bring peace in Viet Nam and that failure to be successful in that effort is not due to any acts of omission on the part of the United States Government.

Mr. Johnson's trip will probably be viewed much more importantly after the elections, and with more objectivity than is the case today. But there are a number of members of Congress who, irrespective of party, privately say that it was a good thing for the President to dramatize the American position by his journey to the Far East.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By Sophie Miller

I received an interesting letter from Cornelius Keyser, of 100 Grand Street. He writes in part: "I see our most beautiful buildings are going to be of the past. I know of most all these buildings of 50 years ago, when Rondout was the great place for business, as I was on the Mary Powell so long and it was where we started each morning six days a week back in 1914. There was no Sunday for the Dayline or Mary Powell in that time. Our dock was in back of the well known Cornell Building, now about to come down, this year of 1966."

Mr. Keyser further writes: "We coaled her (Mary Powell) there each evening after the passengers left. We coaled one side and the Eddyville Yacht would pull her out and turn her around so we could coal the other side. Each Sunday I would watch her and get ready for Monday's sailing. The old-timers remember the Mary Powell well, she was beautiful, swift and always on time, a handsome side-wheeler which should have been preserved, but she was sold and dismantled and so went another of our Hudson River beauties, the "Queen of the Hudson."

The same way, the Urban Removal is removing some of our landmarks this October of 1966, we will regret in years to come. Men who had worked on the Mary Powell, like Mr. Keyser, were a picked crew and were sort of royalty of the Hudson River. No boat could touch her on the Hudson.

Mr. Keyser writes further: "Later years the Albany took her place and we had our dock across from David Gill's place on The Strand. But the Powell still made many trips to New York and Albany as a special boat. She was a masterpiece to all who saw her. Prominent people visiting this section would be taken on a sail on the Hudson on the Mary Powell if it was in season of running."

Mr. Keyser also writes that the Dayline boats used to run to Albany from May to November. He also remembers how each spring the Day Boats would come up to the Cornell shops for some work to be done on them. He feels sad that now looking back, and seeing the Cornell shop business in Rondout gone, the railroad, and blue-stone, and so many more have gone. Now the great buildings are to be bulldozed down. One can't believe it, he writes. The strange part of it is that every so many people are now admiring the heavy beams, the blue-stone, and no doubt if obtainable would become big business again.

I notice that in the taking down of these buildings, many people are coming here to buy various parts from them. Hand tailored bluestone is a thing of the past, and those who buy them, know it. There is a great deal of the tailored bluestone in our Rondout Buildings, and the iron posts holding up store-fronts from the Rondout Iron Works, still imprinted in them. In years to come Rondout buildings will be in books and pictures only, and the names of all those who took part in creating this tearing down and demolishing of these brick and bluestone buildings will be forgotten. Today they have power, which no one can stop, not even the taxpayers.

I saw No. 3 School being bulldozed down and I pleaded with Eric Hemphill, of the Urban Removal to save the plaque "Erected 1868." He said he would "try", but in speaking to him later in the city hall, he said that it was broken and so no doubt went down in the rubble of a school which should have remained intact. Perhaps someday it could have been taxable property like former School No. 1, or used like School No. 2 or needed again for the neighborhood like School No. 8, or School No. 4 which was again used for a time. Emma Wygant school is still used, at this writing, I understand.

DA Speaks at School

Several weeks ago Joseph Toracca, District Attorney of Ulster County, spoke to the high school faculty about Narcotics. Last Friday, he followed this up by speaking with the junior and senior classes. He showed the film entitled Decision which tells the story of drug addiction in the language of the teenager.

Thomas Mayone, from the Ulster County Sheriff's Office accompanied Mr. Toracca. He presented an exhibit of narcotics. An opportunity was also provided for the students to ask questions. Both speakers mentioned the recent arrests on narcotic charges in New Paltz. It is hoped that local teenagers are now alerted to the dangers of drugs and that they will assist the DA in his efforts to get to the source of trouble.

List Library Hours

The high school at New Paltz Central School will remain open on Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. through the month of November if students wish to use it.

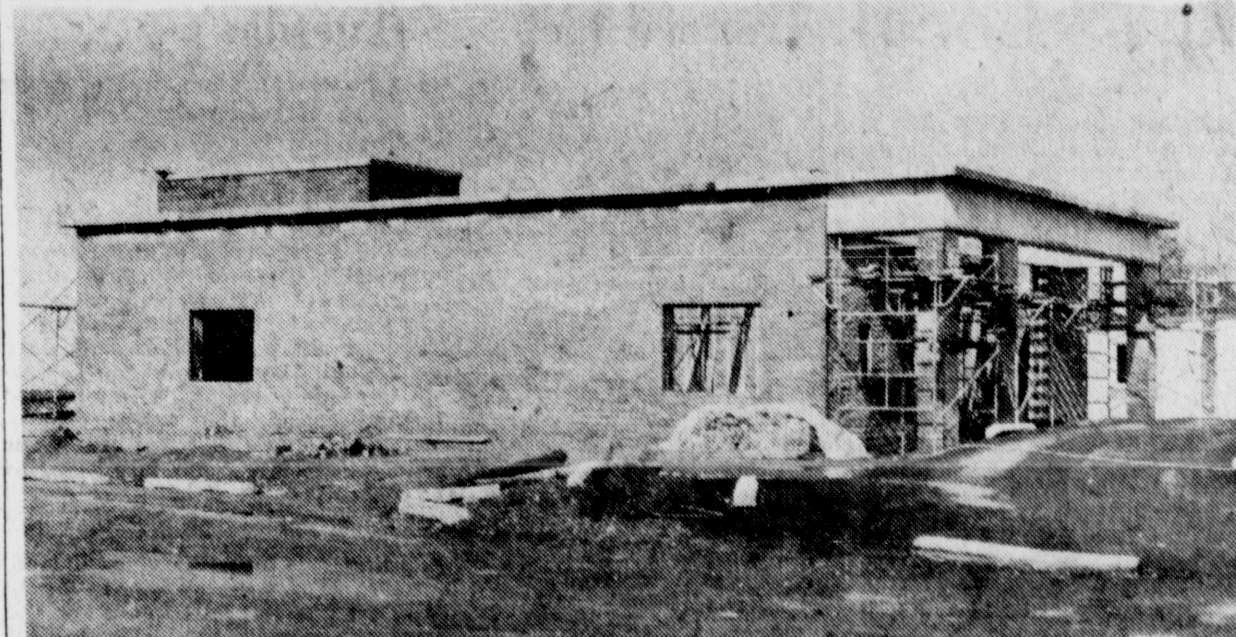

To date student attendance on Wednesday night has been disappointing and evening hours will be discontinued unless more students use the facilities.

Chest Contributions

One of the most heartwarming experiences happened to John L. Wyman, chairman of the New Paltz Community Chest Drive, last week. A check for the chest was received from Dr. and Mrs. Robert Pyle from India via Rachel Matteson. Dr. Pyle was formerly dean at the State University College, New Paltz.

Eighty per cent of the New Paltz goal of $10,200 has been reached thus far. The clean-up is expected to be completed in the next week.

Business Week in Review

By SALLY RYAN
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A month ago American Airlines and the Transport Workers Union shattered the government's economic guideposts with a contract calling for 6.5 per cent wage increases.

"Clearly inflationary," said Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

May Be Beginning

During the week there were indications that that may have been only the beginning.

A presidential emergency board recommended a contract settlement between Pan American World Airways and the Transport Workers calling for a five per cent wage increase retroactive to last July, another five per cent next July and a third one in July 1968.

And the biggest of the five the nation's railroad workers accepted a five per cent wage increase offered by the industry.

"The board isn't unmindful of the inflationary effects of high wage settlements on the economy," the presidential emergency board said. But it added: "The high rate of productivity over the past several years in air transportation creates an economic environment in which wage increases may be above average but price increases needn't result."

Set Guidelines

The Johnson administration had set a guideline of 3.2 per cent for labor contract increases.

Ackley has insisted that figure

Mettacahonts

METTACAHONTS — The Willing Workers will hold their regular meeting Wednesday 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Franklin Kelder.

There will be a card party at the Mettacahonts Hall given by the Willing Workers Thursday 8 p.m. with refreshments and awards.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lennon of Albany were weekend visitors at the home of their mother, Mrs. R. J. Osterhoudt.

Herman Osterhoudt has returned to his home after being a patient at the Albany Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Lars B. Hagen and family of Glen Falls were recent visitors at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Kelder.

Mr. and Mrs. John Troin of Rosendale were visitors Sunday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Anna DePuy and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Phillips and family entertained their cousins Tuesday.

Mrs. Vincent Pindred attended the funeral of her mother in New York last week.

Bargain Bin

Some lumber dealers have a bargain section that can yield savings on material for a home do-it-yourself project. End pieces, mill rejects and picked-over items may be priced low enough, so that enough good lumber can be cut out to make it pay.

still stands—despite a recent rash of settlements of five per cent or more and in the face of the big steel and automobile contract negotiations coming up next year.

General Motors President James M. Roche gave some indication during the week of what lies ahead. He spoke to industrial executives in Flint, Mich., and he talked tough.

Roche used the words "ridiculous" and "without merit" in describing United Auto Workers' local strikes against GM plants.

A strike by 3,400 members of the UAW idled the Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac plant at South Gate, near Los Angeles. Another strike, at St. Louis, Mo., cut off production of Chevrolet Corvettes for several days.

Westinghouse Electric Corp., the nation's second-largest manufacturer of electrical equipment and appliances, and Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co., which makes farm equipment, also were hit by strikes.

Westinghouse said it was willing to give the striking International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers the same package it negotiated with other unions, estimated to average five per cent a year for three years. But the union objected, saying it had been offered less than the others had.

Allis-Chalmers said it had offered the striking UAW a five per cent wage increase now and another three per cent in 1967 and 1968.

National Airlines warned its pilots might strike Nov. 28. L.B. Maytag Jr., National president, touched on another problem the airlines face, a shortage of jet engines that has delayed production and delivery of new jetliners.

The engines are off to war. The Boeing Co. reported the delivery delays sharply reduced its earnings the past three months.

Up Sharply

September figures released during the week showed defense space equipment—were up sharply. Military orders jumped from $3,155,000,000 in August to $4,656,000,000 in September, as aerospace equipment orders soared from $2,072,000,000 to $3,380,000,000.

But factory shipments were down and steel production slid. Automobile sales were off and so was production.

New consumer loans declined in September for the second straight month.

Interest rates on conventional home mortgages climbed to another record in September. The average interest rate on a loan to buy a new house climbed to 6.22 per cent.

Made Move

The Federal National Mortgage Association moved to ease some of the pressure. It raised from $17,500 to $20,000 the ceiling on loans on houses it will buy in its second market operations.

That is intended to help more people sell their houses. It also may help new construction indirectly, since many people must sell their old houses in order to buy new ones.

• BRIDGE

South Discards Ace Upon Ace

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

All bridge players are people. All people think. Therefore all bridge players think. The trouble is, many do their thinking at the wrong time.

South won the heart lead with his ace. Then he led his lack of diamonds. East took the ace and led back another heart which West ruffed. South played the hand out slowly and thoughtfully but had no way to avoid losing a club.

South remarked that he was afraid of a heart ruff but there was nothing he could do about it. Somehow or other nothing ever worked for him. South should have been more than afraid of a heart ruff. East had gone to three hearts all by himself and East was vulnerable.

South should have been certain that East held a six-card suit. South should have used his thinking ability before playing the first card from dummy. He should have reasoned that the heart was a singleton. He should have been certain that East would hold the ace of diamonds and that West was likely to hold the other two. Thus, he could see that heart ruff hanging over his head and if he had thought a little more, he could have seen how to avoid it.

All South had to do was to play the king of hearts from dummy. Then he could discard his ace of hearts on the ace of spades and come about his business of playing trumps.

The discard of an ace on ace appears mighty wasteful but this time it was an insurance policy. South held every high club and diamond except the aces and could only lose one trick in each suit. Once he got rid of his ace of hearts he could trump a heart high and avoid the ruff.

Joe's first fight!

It was quite a battle . . . But he won

In October 1964, a hospital vital to Dutchess County was about to die.

The Federal Government had ordered the doors of Castle Point Veterans Hospital shut forever.

The shut-down would mean one thing.

That the area's veterans would have to travel as far as Albany or New York City for medical service.

Right after we elected Joe Resnick to Congress, hundreds of veterans and their families pleaded for Joe's help.

And Joe came through. He took charge and led the fight to save the hospital.

To do it, he had to buck the Administration. He dared to go so far as to state our case to the President. Right to his face. In the White House.

Today the patient is doing nicely, thank you.

In fact, Castle Point is healthier and bigger than ever.

Thanks to a Congressman who cares for his area.

And who's ready to fight for it against all odds.

Flow Ebbs in ...

less. The storm struck especially hard at north and central Italy.

Edoardo Cesareo, a Florence bank clerk, said the city was standing in so much water that "as I looked down at Florence from a hillside, I thought I was seeing the Grand Canal of Venice."

Grosseto, a coastal city of 47,000 south of Florence, was covered by up to nine feet of water. Its only link outside was an airport, to which bread was being flown from other cities.

Trento in the north was hit by fresh floods overnight. They caused chemical explosions in vacant industrial plants, interrupted electrical power and cut the drinking water supply.

Rescued 150

Firemen rescued 150 children isolated at a nursery school by the Tagliamento River in northern Italy. The river forced evacuation of 10 communities.

Roads and rail links were impassable all across Italy, almost cutting the north from the south. Trains from Milan to Rome followed a route of more than 800 miles, double the normal distance, wading back and forth across the country to avoid flooded areas.

Florence went into its second day without drinking water, electricity or telephone service. The flood there was said to be the worst since 1270.

Army units reached Florence at daybreak after they were halted overnight by water several miles outside the city. A special train was to try to reach the city today from Pisa, 18 miles to the northwest. Food was in short supply in Florence and bakers in suburban areas above the water level worked tirelessly to produce bread.

Two-thirds of Florence's area was under 6 to 10 feet of water from the Arno River. Many families forced out of first-floor flats were unable to get to shelter in public buildings and spent a chilly night on their roofs.

The first floor of the famed Uffizi Gallery was inundated. Unconfirmed reports said more than 8,000 paintings kept in the basement were damaged. Water endangered the famous Fra Angelico frescoes in St. Mark's Monastery and poured into the Florence Cathedral.

Cars Floated

Parked cars floated down streets crashing into buildings. Floods invaded vineyards around Florence, home of the famous chianti wines. The grape harvest ended about a month ago but damage to vines and fruit trees was believed vast.

Electricity and telephone service were cut in the canal city of Venice by the worst flood there in 966 years. Water was three feet deep in St. Mark's Cathedral, staining its richly decorated interior walls.

At least six persons lost their lives in floods or landslides in the northern Alpine region around Trento, where the weather was reported worsening.

Deep snow closed many Alpine passes. Three hundred persons, mostly skiers, were reported stranded in the Stelvio Pass leading to Switzerland.

Rough seas battered both coasts of the peninsula. Water reached 150 yards inland at the Adriatic resorts of Rimini and Riccione. A 3,000-ton Italian cargo ship was half submerged after being smashed repeatedly against a pier in Naples, on the west.

50 Boats Sink

More than 50 boats sank in the harbor and U.S. 6th Fleet warships moved away from their docks to anchor in the harbor. Three American sailors were hurt, two seriously, during that operation on the guided missile light cruiser Springfield, flagship of the fleet.

More than 1,000 persons were evacuated from the area near Venice and thousands more near Florence. Helicopters plucked 20 sick children from the roof of a flooded hospital at Fiorenza.

Weathermen said the storms stemmed from a cyclone that formed in the Tyrrhenian Sea west of Italy with winds up to 85 miles an hour.

4 Speeders Pay Fines

Four motorists appeared today before City Judge Hubert A. Richter and were fined after pleading guilty to charges of speeding.

James A. Lee, 19, of Colonial Gardens, was fined $50 and his license was suspended for 15 days. He was accused by Officer Joseph Kivlin of driving 50 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone on East Chester Street. It was Lee's second violation, police said.

Ernest C. Cummings, 18, of Ulster Park, cited by Officer Kivlin of driving 45 miles an hour in the East Chester 30-mile zone, was fined $15. Charles Guida, 62, of Ulster Park, also booked by Kivlin, was fined $10. He was accused of driving 42 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone on West O'Reilly Street.

Haidi Kang Yen, 33, of 169 Washington Avenue, who was charged with driving 41 miles an hour on West O'Reilly Street by Officer Richard Spaulding, was fined $10 on his plea of guilty.

Gaynor Lauds Local

$4 million of housing and urban renewal financing.

"New York State's program of housing for the aging began approximately 25 years ago on a small scale, when a few one-room apartments for single persons were included in the first low-rent project financed with a state loan," Gaynor said.

Gaynor pointed out that today the State has a broad spectrum of programs to provide the variety of accommodations needed by the aging.

The commissioner said that in addition to low-rent projects, such as Wiltwyck Gardens, which offer housekeeping facilities for the independent aging under the public housing program, the State has been able to finance a variety of privately-owned projects for the aging with moderate incomes.

Provides Extra Services

"Some of these resemble your Wiltwyck Gardens in that they are retirement communities for single persons and couples able to live independently," Gaynor said. "Others provide a few extra services such as scheduled visits by public health nurses."

A substantial number of apartments for aging have been included in middle-income projects for families of all ages, such as the case in public housing, Gaynor noted. All of these types of housing accommodations have been developed under the State's limited-profit mortgage loan program.

During the past year the State has established three new programs that should further expand the accommodations needed by the city's aging population, Gaynor noted. "Although two are not restricted exclusively to providing for this group," Gaynor said, "all are expected to have a major impact in the field of housing for the aging in years to come."

Nursing Home Program

Gaynor said the first new program is the State-financed nursing home program, administered by the State Department of Health and financed by the State Finance Agency. "Under this program," the commissioner said, "non-profit developers will receive long-term, low-interest mortgage loans to build low-cost nursing homes. Anyone who has had to undertake the expenses of maintaining an aging parent in a profit-making nursing home will appreciate the great need for care at modest cost."

The second program, Gaynor pointed out, is the housing development fund which provides "seed money" for initial costs to non-profit organizations undertaking to build housing under the State's limited-profit program or the two FHA 221(d) (3) programs. "Institutions eligible to sponsor a non-profit housing company and obtain a loan include foundations, labor and fraternal organizations, settlement houses and other associations established on a non-profit basis to provide housing, community facilities or similar public benefit programs," Gaynor said.

Cites Future Plans

Many such organizations, the commissioner pointed out, are capable of undertaking housing development in the public interest, but until now have been unable to do so because they lack funds, or cannot divert funds to pay for initial planning costs.

"With the creation of the housing development fund, such sponsors can borrow the financing needed for site options, preliminary architectural engineering and legal fees, tenant surveys, market analyses and similar expenses that must be incurred before the mortgage closing can take place," Gaynor said. "The loan is repaid without interest when permanent financing has been arranged."

The commissioner explained that the object of this program is the stimulation of an entire new kind of low-rent housing, privately-owned but operated without profit and in the public interest.

Finances for Expansion

"Homes for the aging, geriatrics hospitals and similar institutions are now able to expand their facilities with housekeeping accommodations, unions and fraternal organizations can build for their retired members, and settlement houses, already deeply involved in recreational centers for the aging, might broaden their approach to include housing."

The third program, Gaynor noted, is exclusively for the aging, and is an innovation in the state limited-profit program to provide public housing rents in privately owned housing.

Gaynor said, "Non-profit sponsors of this kind of housing can receive all of the following forms of assistance:

"1. The seed money loan from the Division of Housing and Community Renewal for initial planning costs.

"2. A mortgage loan from the New York State Housing Finance Agency covering up to 100 per cent of the project cost;

"3. 100 per cent abatement of the municipal real estate tax under the provisions of the property tax law for membership corporations;

"4. Rent assistance from the Division of Housing and Community Renewal for up to 100 per cent of the tenants to reduce the rents to the public housing level."

Mayor Adds Praise

Mayor Garraghan praised the efforts of present and former members of the Kingston Housing Authority for their achievements in providing the city with Colonial Gardens and Wiltwyck Gardens and the plans for Roundout Gardens. "Kingston is fortunate to have these facilities for the aging residents," Garraghan said. "They definitely will be great assets in future years to our community."

Yerry Presents Guests

Introduced by Yerry in addition to the speakers and clergy were Alexander Yerman, director of the State Department of Agriculture and Markets; Harry Gold, counsel for the State Department of Agriculture and Markets; Harry Halverson and John A. McCullough of Harry Halverson Associates, architects for Wiltwyck Gardens and Representatives of the State Division of Housing, the Common Council and former members of the KHA.

Gold paid tribute to the late Frederick H. Stang and credited the late attorney for his untiring efforts and legal guidance extended to the KHA since it was organized and until his untimely death.

Driver Burned

Beach, N. J., was unloading a tractor-truck of propane gas, owned by the firm of H. R. Ritter, Rahway, N. J., into a stationary tank at a welding plant when the fire erupted. Officials theorized that the probable cause of the fire was a break in the gas hose, causing the hose to fall down and come in contact with the truck's muffler. Leaking gas, in escaping, ignited immediately in what was described as spectacular flames.

Firemen from Ulster Hose Co. No. 5 battled the flames and were on the scene until 1 a. m. Assistant Chief William Williams Jr. and Captain Charles Crespin, who were in charge, said firemen were kept busy in their successful attempts to confine the conflagration to the loading platform, the interior of the truck and pools of loose liquid propane gas.

Williams said this morning that Ulster Hose had two pumps and a water truck at the scene with the Sawkill Fire Department standing by. He had high praise for his men; said it was "quite a fire" and that the two crews involved deserved major credit for the excellent showing made. One crew handled the hose line on the tanker of the truck to keep the fire area cooled down and a second crew extinguished the fire in the cab which completely demolished the interior.

Two injuries were reported as a result of the flash fire. LaBracio, the operator of the truck involved, suffered superficial burns of the face and hands, taken to Kingston City Hospital by paramedics. Ambulance service was called for shock.

Also injured was fireman James Freer, of Ulster Hose Company, who received a minor laceration of the hand.

Judge Says ...

liquor license application had been rejected, but that the trio had influence with the SLA.

The restaurant's partners, who had been given marked money by the police allegedly met Brodsky a third time on Aug. 1 but did not deliver the cash because a promised "higher up" was not present. The local alcoholic beverage board approved the inn's license application on Aug. 26 and the SLA approved it on Sept. 6.

The case also reportedly involves three members of the State Legislature, according to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Also questioned by the grand jury was Sidney Balsam, 51, an investigating supervisor for the SLA.

It was learned from a source close to the investigation that Balsam earlier gave Queens Dist. Atty. Nat H. Hentel a "vorn statement" to the effect that last July, when he was in the market for a car he was guided by Judge Schor to a lot in Brooklyn.

Balsam said he had not bought a car but was asked by Schor to see if anything was holding up the issuance of a liquor license for the inn.

Balsam reportedly told Hentel that he informed Schor that the application was being processed in the normal fashion and that he had heard nothing further from Schor or Brodsky.

Schor was appointed a city magistrate by Mayor Robert F. Wagner in January, 1965, replacing Albert D. Schaner, elevated to the special session bench. When Schaner's term ran out at the end of 1959, Wagner appointed Schor to a full 10-year term. That appointment expires Dec. 31, 1970. The magistrates court later was absorbed by the criminal court.

City police today investigated complaints of thefts of a baby's stroller and a boy's bicycle. Mrs. William Hadfield, 165 Fair Street, notified authorities that someone stole her baby's stroller from her front porch, near John Street, near Horneck, 23 Mary's Avenue, last night, yesterday that her son's bicycle stroller from the MJM School yard. The stroller and bicycle were each valued at $15.

main infiltration route into the heart of Viet Nam.

The pattern of enemy attacks indicated a whole Communist division may be engaged.

In the air war over North Viet Nam, two more U.S. war planes were downed Friday, bringing the total reported lost in the north to 418, a U.S. spokesman said.

There was no letup in the Tay Ninh fighting today, a spokesman said. Several battalions of American infantrymen holding the Communist bunker complex there overran Friday were attacked six times this morning and early afternoon.

Other Battle

A civilian irregular defense force comprised mainly of Nung tribesmen and their American officers was still fighting for its life to the west.

A U.S. spokesman said "multibrigades" of Americans are now involved in the Tay Ninh fighting. This could be as many as 10,000 infantrymen.

There was speculation in Saigon that the Communist thrust in Tay Ninh first detected Thursday when an "eagle flight" of helicopter-borne troops from the U.S. 25th Division spotted Communist troops in bivouac, might be the much-rumored attempt to score a victory against American forces prior to the Nov. 8 elections in the United States.

Elsewhere in Viet Nam, the ground war was quiet, with only the U.S. 4th Division reporting any contact.

Troops from this unit engaged a North Vietnamese platoon today near Plei Dierenz, killing six.

The pace was fast over North Viet Nam where U.S. Air Force and Navy planes are taking advantage of a break in the weeks of bad weather. U.S. spokesmen reported that U.S. pilots have flown 607 missions over North Viet Nam in the past four days, a record for this period of time.

One of 155 missions was flown Friday against lines of communication, storage and staging areas, and military and naval targets.

Eight U.S. servicemen perished and 14 others were injured Friday night in a flash fire aboard the aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt off North Viet Nam. A Navy spokesman said the fire caused no functional problems and the carrier will stay on station in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Elsewhere at sea, North Vietnamese shore batteries attacked U.S. destroyers Friday for the second time this week, inflicting slight shrapnel hits on the destroyer Braine. U.S. spokesmen reported that intense counter-battery fire from the destroyers, and repeated air strikes by Air Force F4C Phantom jets, damaged two of the North Vietnamese guns and left fires burning in the area.

Lumi Case Draws

old foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lumi of Tillson, who are seeking to adopt the child. Their application for adoption has been denied by Ulster County Welfare Department.

The case has gone through Family Court where the Welfare Department has been upheld. The Lumi's have since brought the matter before the State Supreme Court's Appellate Division.

Griggs issued the following statement this morning:

"As counsel for the Ulster County Welfare Department, I represented that agency during the habeas corpus proceedings involving an infant which had been placed in a foster or boarding home maintained by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lumi.

"My own knowledge of this matter and the inflammatory and distorted remarks of a Congressman running for re-election have left me no choice but to file a complaint with the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court, Third Division in Albany concerning the person's unreasonable attacks upon the public official and his flagrant attempt to remove this whole matter from an appellate court to a street corner.

"As Commissioner Fitzsimmons had previously stated, this matter is under the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court and has been for some weeks. Prior to this, the matter was tried in Family Court in Ulster County over five months ago.

"The Congressman in question was fully informed of the status of the matter in a letter sent to him by me last month."

Congressman Resnick took strong objection to Griggs' statement saying, "When the day comes that the people of this country can not question the actions of their elected public officials then we're in pretty bad trouble."

Resnick also said, "I have information that Ulster County Family Court Judge Hugh Elwyn was related by marriage to County Welfare Commissioner Joseph Fitzsimmons. Resnick said they were first cousins.

"Maybe if Mr. Lumi had a relative on the Family Court bench he might have a better chance of winning this case," Resnick said.

Lumi was also on hand to make a statement about the case saying that all he and his wife wanted to do was adopt the child. He said that he and his wife were the parents of three natural children. One of the boys is studying to be a Catholic priest.

Mr. Lumi told The Freeman, "I can't understand all these objections about nationality and coloring and all that. My son who is studying to be a priest has blond hair and green eyes."

The child in question, Beth, is 4½ years old and has blonde hair and blue eyes. Objections were raised to the adoption because both the Lumi's are of Italian extraction with brown hair and brown eyes.

LBJ's Beagle a Mom

WASHINGTON (AP) — The best kept secret since President Johnson was elected, the birth of five puppies to Freckles, one of the President's beagles.

Just before departing Friday for his Texas ranch, Johnson showed the puppies to newsmen. He said they were born Oct. 26, the day he visited South Viet Nam.

The pups — three females and two males, as yet unnamed — were sired by a beagle named "Buddy," owned by Jean Austin Du Pont of Wilmington, Del. The White House said they have been promised to friends.

Newsman Dies

A former New York City newspaper man died suddenly Friday in Toronto, Canada.

David Dorrance Preston, 45, who had worked on the editorial staff of the New York Sun and the Wilmington, Del. Journal will be buried Monday in Toronto. Memorial services will be held at Wiltwyck Cemetery here at a date to be announced.

Mr. Preston graduated from the Lawrenceville School in 1940 and attended the University of Virginia School of Foreign Affairs before going into the Army. He served with the Signal Corps in the European Theatre during World War II.

Surviving are his wife, the former Phyllis Gurd Smith of Toronto, and his mother, Mrs. Frances Dorrance Preston of Saugerties. His father, Jansen Preston, is deceased.

Preston had been on the editorial staff of the Toronto Telegram for the past five years. He worked in the area of political analysis.

taken into custody.

According to city police, Castlerlin allegedly ransacked areas in the bank and in St. Joseph's School where he was said to have broken a window and entered the building "with intent to commit a crime." Desks and cabinets were ransacked, police said, and an attempt was made to force open a safe, according to a report of Detectives Wilmet F. Hall and Ellsworth, who investigated.

Castlerlin also allegedly entered the main floor of the bank, opened a small cabinet and ransacked two desks and then made his way to the basement where he was apprehended by Ellsworth and Barringer.

Conservative Push

With such a wealth of candidates, the Congressional race boasts yet another. Making the biggest push of any Conservative ever for office in this area is Jean Hervey, who has shown fairly admirable form in debates throughout the district with his three competitors.

Conservatives have run before here most notably in the last contest for the Assembly seat. Hervey, bright-eyed and alert, has brought, at least, a certain lightness to the rough and tumble campaign by hotly disputing federal assistance on almost all levels. He speaks boldly and is on the record on whatever issues there are—qualities that will probably secure for him considerably more votes than the 3,000-plus polled in Ulster by any of his predecessors.

Neither does the tide that has mounted behind Lindbloom. Even if he is guaranteed the votes of the 5,406 people who have signed his petition—and this would not necessarily have to be the case—it is not enough to cause concern to his opponents. If he does even better than his petition (compiled mostly in Ulster and Dutchess Counties) might indicate, it will be because he offers those who desire it the opportunity to cast a protest vote—again something of a novelty first here.

Even the series of debates the four candidates waged across five county districts were in the form of a new political undertaking locally—but they are now history. Most of what they did and said in the debates could have been—and was—predicted. The real flurry of excitement will come as the votes are counted Tuesday night and the results pour in.

The debates were sometimes one-way conversations, but they at least offered a test of principle which was sadly lacking in past politicians here over the years, who would no more have debated each other than they would have been caught frugging at the Peppermint Lounge.

The men who are running in this election differ in other ways from the men who were the nominees of the past. All young men, they bear the stamp of that new breed of politicians in whom the very fact of youth and not merely the appearance of youthfulness is all-important.

And they have, at least, made an attempt to expose themselves to all those people who cared to listen. But only one can win, and in the final analysis, it will have to be either the Democrats or the Republicans.

The race is now really over for the candidates and there is no longer time to address themselves to the issues. The voters of the 28th District will now decide which of the nominees will sit in Congress. It is an important choice and it would be a rash handicapper who would regard either man as a sure thing, even at this late date in the campaign. No one who really knows what he is talking about is counting one or the other out.

One thing is certain. A tough mind and far-reaching eye is needed to lead the 28th District, and a great many voters here seem to sense that.

Tuesday's ...

particular candidate, there would seem to be more going for him than just the edge alone. In the interesting case of Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville, the assumption that the 28th District will be restored to the Republicans, because of the conservative roots of its people, somehow loses weight. Public attitudes here have changed and are changing and no one can be certain that Resnick's established and considerable talent for securing federal aid and grants for his district and his flair for making his name a household word will not carry the day even more emphatically than before.

For the first time, too, in 1966, the 28th has fielded a wholly new type of third party in the Congressional race. Because of Independent Peace candidate, Eric Lindbloom, the issue that the Viet Nam war is a major political question has infiltrated this election. Although this may be of only minor interest to the vast majority of area voters—in historical context, it deserves more than a passing glance.

It can only be called surprising that a district, which has placed little emphasis on liberalism over the decades and which has clung to the status quo more than to change, should be one of the very few in the entire country where the question of Viet Nam and its cost in lives and money is even being debated by the candidates at all.

These facts notwithstanding, a Peace candidate is on the ballot, placed there by a petition which bore more than 5,000 signatures, and he has brought to the 28th what most other elections throughout the country do not have—the public discussion of the rights or wrongs of the war."

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Saturday, Nov. 5, the 309th day of 1966. There are 56 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1940, Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected to a third term as President of the United States, breaking established precedent.

On this date: In 1872, Susan B. Anthony voted for Ulysses S. Grant in the presidential election and was convicted of illegal voting and fined $100.

In 1895, the chief basic patent for gasoline automobiles was issued to a man named George B. Sheldon.

In 1944, B29s bombed Singapore in the longest daylight military mission flown up to that time.

Ten years ago — After bombing Egyptian airfields for five days, British and French forces invaded Egypt.

Five years ago — The first of two Discoverer space probes to be launched within a 10-day period went up from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California.

One year ago — The United Nations General Assembly voted overwhelmingly over British objections, for a demand that Britain use military force if necessary to assure complete political freedom in Rhodesia.

Legion Ladies From County Will Join Vets 'Shop'

Ulster County units, American Legion Auxiliary, will take part in a gift shop aimed at serving over 1,000 veterans at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Albany. According to Ulster County Rehabilitation Chairman Mrs. George Shea, Stone Ridge, local participation will be on Monday, Nov. 28 and Monday, Dec. 5.

The gift shop program is aimed at supplying gifts—free of charge—which hospitalized servicemen may send to their immediate families, courtesy of the Third and Fourth District American Legion Auxiliary units. Funds for gift wrappings and mailings will be donated by units in the 16 participating counties.

According to Mrs. Shea, the program will have patients able to leave their rooms to visit the shop Dec. 5 and 6 in order to choose their gifts. Those unable to leave will be visited by gift carts manned by volunteers.

An open house is also planned Sunday, Dec. 4 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Gifts in the shop number over 5,000, with volunteers expecting more than 3,000 packages to be mailed to all parts of the country. Overall cost of the program is anticipated at "well over $7,000," Mrs. Shea said, with money raised through the annual Poppy Drive and other projects conducted by the auxiliaries.

Doing The Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

TWO O'CLOCK IS FAR TOO LATE TO LEAVE BACHELOR'S APARTMENT

Dear Mrs. Post: The 22-year-old daughter of a friend is being rushed by a young man with whom she is spending several evenings a week in his apartment, frequently until two o'clock in the morning or later. She has been well brought up and has never, until now, flouted propriety and discretion. Her parents are quite upset and she is amazed and hurt that they don't trust her. She maintains that this is no longer considered indiscreet. They would like your opinion.—Mrs. R.R.

Dear Mrs. R.R.: Any woman, whether she is 22 or 32, is asking for criticism when she remains in a man's apartment until two in the morning. A girl of 22 is certainly old enough to dine with a man and spend the evening with him. It isn't even a question of "trust" but rather of the reputation she will make for herself. I'm all for the current relaxations in rigid rules, but within limits, and I think two o'clock is beyond the limit. If you are in a position to suggest that either they go out to dance or visit friends when they want to make it a late date, otherwise that they say goodnight shortly after dinner.

Elopers Forfeit Right To Festivities

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently a friend invited me to a bridal shower for a couple who had been secretly married for three months. My question is whether or not it is in good taste to hold a "bridal" shower after the couple have been married for so long and the girl is already noticeably pregnant?—Susan H.

Dear Susan: By getting married secretly, the couple forfeited their right to expect any festivities or celebrations that ordinarily accompany a wedding. In fact, if your friend insisted on having a shower, it would have been more appropriate to make it a stork shower rather than a bridal shower. It would have been in far better taste for the family to give a small reception to introduce the bride to close friends who could then decide whether they wished to send wedding presents or not.

So you're planning to give a shower! A new booklet by Elizabeth L. Post tells you everything you need to know for a bridal shower, a welcome party for a new neighbor, the local minister or anyone else. To get a copy, send a quarter to cover booklet and shipping expenses to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper.

Rounded Curves Are Fashionable Say New York Designers

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The flat-chested female is out of style. So is the miss who constricts her natural endowments.

The jersey bounce is in — those softly rounded, uncomplicated curves wrapped in stretchy wool that captures the subtleties of body movement.

The designers showing their spring collections to buyers this week are placing their full fashion approval on a soft silhouette.

Rudi Gernreich, inventor of the no-bra which does little more than give a wearer the comfortable complacency of having complied with the tradition of undergarments, recently opened his knitwear collection with a respectable number of jersey bouncers.

Quite respectable too were the jersey misses in Jacques Tiffeau's collection this week. Soft curves undulated tenuous under jersey mailot-like overblouses which were belted under the bosom, V-necked, waist-wrapped jersey dresses, as well as quiet colored shifts with blazing scarfs at the shoulders or throats.

At Bonnie Cashin's springtime collection Thursday, her curvy little jersey girls were as sweet as sugar and just as refined.

Talks Highlight Meeting of Local Sorority Chapter

The next session, a dinner meeting Nov. 15 at the Kirkland Hotel, will be highlighted by presentation of ritual of jewels degrees to pledges Barbara Clark, Amy Kirschner, Joan Sleight, Sandy O'Brien, Mary Ellen Huhta and Phyllis Whitaker. Also at the meeting rushes Sue Bonville, Marilyn Langton and Marge Lawrence will receive their pledge ritual.

FURNITURE RESTORATION

Refinishing furniture can be fun! And you can furnish your home inexpensively and with real distinction when you know how to refinish them, says Phyllis Barlow, Extension Home Economist.

Choose your pieces carefully—study their design and construction. Make sure it is suitable for your purpose and that the price is right. Don't overlook auctions and various second hand furniture stores in your search for here is where you may find real treasures.

The restoration of furniture is not difficult—the only requirements are patience, ambition, and some basic knowledge.

One of the first things to remember is not to try to make the piece look new. Part of the charm of old furniture is its signs of age. One of the biggest mistakes we can make is over restoration. In fact, it can ruin a fine old piece.

Many old pieces of furniture just need to be cleaned. If the original finish is smooth, then do not remove it. For cleaning, the furniture cleaner-conditioner is recommended. You can make this at home.

Furniture Cleaner-Conditioner
1 glass container with tight-fitting lid.

1/2 container of pure spirits of gum turpentine
1/2 container of boiled linseed oil (buy commercially prepared—do not attempt to boil linseed oil at home)

Mix — cover tightly, shake well before using.

For further information on using the cleaner-conditioner and other techniques for repairing furniture, you will find Cornell Bulletin 23, "Furniture Restoration," extremely valuable. The cost is 50 cents. You may obtain one at the Home Economics Office at 74 John Street, Kingston or by writing to us at U.P.O. Box 545, Kingston, N. Y.

Linda Bailey Weds Dennis H. Boyce Here

MRS. DENNIS H. BOYCE (Lakeside photo)

Miss Linda Marie Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey of 23 Levan Street, Kingston, N. Y., wed Dennis H. ## 18th Century Art Shown at Vassar

The public is invited to view an exhibition of Eighteenth Century Decorative Art at the Vassar College Art Gallery in Taylor Hall through Nov. 30. It consists of a group of paintings and drawings on loan from the Metropolitan Museum in New York. The works in the exhibition range from the early to the late eighteenth century.

The paintings were given to the Metropolitan by J. Pierpont Morgan, and include several pairs of carved and painted overdoors as well as a pair of Louis XV urns. Particularly interesting is a painting of Flowers and Chinoiserie Decoration attributed to Jean Pillement, the drawings have been lent to the exhibition by the Print Department of the Metropolitan Museum.

There are 21 of them in all, including works by Francois Boucher, J. B. Huet, Claude Gillot and Pillement. While many of the drawings are purely decorative, several are designs for clocks, box-lids, locks and key-holes, or other objects.

Dear Abby . . .

Better Stay Out of Grandma's Way

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is my second marriage. I was a divorcee with four small children, but this time I got the best man who ever walked in shoe leather. I am 22 and my husband is 21, and his mother doesn't like me. She says her son isn't ready for so much responsibility. She says her son told me to my face that she doesn't like small children, especially mine because they are not HER grandchildren.

She said if I ever had her son's children THEY will be her grandchildren. And she doesn't want my kids calling her "grandma." I don't want to come between my husband and his mother, but I don't want my children hurt either. What should I do?

NEW IN THE FAMILY

DEAR NEW: Stay out of her way. And do your children a favor and keep THEM out of her way, too. If you don't want to come between your husband and his mother, don't expect him to run interference for you.

A 22-year-old divorcee with four small children is lucky to get the "Best man who ever walked in shoe leather." But you can't have everything. And your handicap is a mother-in-law who sounds like she could hunt bear with a switch.

DEAR ABBY: Married women are expected to wear wedding rings. I think all married men should wear something to indicate that THEY are married.

WILMA

DEAR WILMA: Isn't a five-year-old suit and a worried look sufficient?

DEAR ABBY: I have a close friend who has a 19-year-old daughter who is sweet, wholesome and respectful. She has always entertained her friends at home and has abided by her parents' wishes. But the problem Abby is, no matter which boy the girl brings home, her father ignores him completely. In fact, he ignored them so completely, they all feel unwelcome in the home.

Her mother is at a loss. In fact she's become a nervous wreck due to his actions. This father claims he loves his daughter and would like to see her settled with a nice young man, so he can't be jealous and trying to run them off for fear of losing her. He is friendly and fun-loving with all her girl friends, but when a boy calls, he acts like he is made of stone. Can you figure this out and offer some advice?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: What father says and how father feels may be two different things. Some fathers don't "trust" any male who shows an interest in their daughters. Others are simply ill-at-ease with a young man of another generation.

Ask your friend to get her husband to talk about his feelings with regard to his daughter and her boy friends. Sometimes the truth reveals itself when the problem is discussed openly.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. K.: A lady should never tell an off color joke. The laugh she gets is temporary — and doesn't compensate for the loss of dignity — which is permanent.

How has the world been treating you. Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

3 State Troopers Are Linked With Minuteman Unit

NEW YORK (AP) — Three state troopers linked to the para-military Minutemen organization have been removed from active duty following an investigation of right-wing infiltration of the force.

One of the policemen was "retired from active service," a second submitted his resignation, and a third was "relieved of all active law enforcement duties" while his associations with the group undergo further scrutiny.

Names Withheld

The troopers' names were not revealed. The action was disclosed Friday by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in conjunction with State Police Superintendent Arthur Cornelius Jr.

An alleged Minutemen plot to blow up three private camps considered by the group to be Communist-oriented, was smashed last Sunday. Some 20 members of the organization were arrested.

The dismissed trooper was revealed as a Minuteman through information uncovered in a raid on the group's headquarters, Rockefeller's statement said.

Was Sympathizer

The trooper who submitted his resignation "though not himself a Minuteman had allowed Minutemen to practice firing automatic weapons on private land," according to the governor. He retired from the force Tuesday.

An investigation is continuing into possible involvement of the third policeman. The state will "take appropriate action at once" if any improper activity is disclosed, Rockefeller said. "There is presently no evidence that any of the three troopers was directly involved in the Minutemen organization's plan to destroy or damage facilities at three summer training camps," he added.

Rules Prohibit

State police rules prohibit New York's 2,800 troopers from membership in organizations deemed to interfere with the proper performance of their duties.

Meanwhile, Irwin Cohen, a Malverne, N. Y., photographer held as a material witness in the alleged plot, was released on parole Friday. Queens Supreme Court Justice Albert Bosch vacated the $25,000 bail that had been set for him.

comes out much further ahead." Before starting rounds, I spent some time in one store's "crows nest" observing other shoppers doing their marketing chores.

Several were approaching it systematically, with lists, coupons and an eagle-eye for bargains and specials.

Others took their shopping safari less seriously - browsing among the aisles, with an eye to fancy packaging, luxury items and gourmet delights that caught their fancy.

A woman shopper who put a place-setting of English china in her cart commented:

"This means a couple of casseroles during the week instead of roast beef, but what a pretty table setting."

Samuel Corey of the town of Tonawanda, father of 10, carefully checked his purchases against his shopping list.

He admitted that shopping nowadays has become a science-one that must be approached methodically and objectively. And he said it's something he doesn't trust to his wife.

"She's like most women-gets carried away with tricky gimmicks. We end up with a closet full of fancy waxes, window cleaners and a few frozen delicacies for the week," he said.

"By Wednesday there's nothing left in the house to eat-just lots of stuff to clean with."

Later I asked several women why they were buying vegetables frozen in butter sauce and giant-sized bags of french fries.

"For me, it's simply a matter of convenience," said Mrs. Lorne Bitner of Kenmore. "I work and find that it's worth the extra money for frozen foods. They save me a lot of time."

She checked out with a cart half filled with groceries and asked with a smile:

"It happens every time-where's my will power?"

The Indians called the Chesapeake Bay the Great Salt Water.

Democrats Claim

it, "we aren't supposed to be involved in politics."

A Labor Department spokesman said the figures were accurate.

The economic position paper as originally drafted said: "A good way to check how the cost of living is moving in America is to figure how long you've got to work to pay for something."

Compares Work Hours

For the typical factory worker, it said, "in 1966 it takes four hours less of his working time per week to pay for the things he needs and uses than it did in 1960."

Citing an example, the paper says it now takes a worker 26.5 weeks to earn enough money to buy a new car, compared with 28.5 weeks in 1960.

Overall, the real spendable earnings of a worker with three dependents after taking account of price increases has gone up $11.02 per week, or 14.7 per cent, under Kennedy-Johnson, compared with $2.07, or 2.8 per cent, under Eisenhower, the paper says.

Only Medical Bills Up

The only area listed in the original document in which workers have lost ground is in paying medical bills:

"In 1966 the same factory worker must work 10 hours, 50 minutes to pay for a day's stay in a semiprivate hospital room. In 1960, he had to work 9 hours, 7 minutes for the same room."

But that example reportedly has been dropped in updating the figures.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Freeman Sports Editor

Bulldozers often grind the past into the dust to pave the way for the future. Their systematic violence is changing the face of the landscape at the corner of Cornell Street and Smith Avenue. And the Athletic Field is no more.

This was a baseball landmark that survived the decades, then fell into shabby disrepair. Its history and legends deserve special treatment which we'll essay in a future column.

Wonder how many of the pre-election "shoo-in" political candidates remember what happened in Los Angeles and Baltimore in early October?

• Figger Filbert:

The New York Mets' payroll is assured. The Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants each have nine playing dates, including one Ladies Night each in the 1967 schedule at Shea. Willie Mays and company attracted 399,166 in nine dates this year, an average of 44,351 per date. Dodgers, in eight bookings, drew 358,518 for a 39,835 average. . . Jim Rattray of Port Ewen, who was leading the Ohio Conference in pass receptions with Kenyon College, was put out of the 1966 season for good by a concussion in the Sewanee game. Disenchantment already has set in between the United States Soccer Football Association (governing body of the sport in the country) and the new professional circuit. A USSFA edict suspends for five years any player or official "who participates in soccer football not sanctioned by the association." The new pro league, of course, is not sanctioned.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Dutchess County Old Timers Baseball Association inducts five members into its Hall of Fame on Nov. 19. The quintet includes Herm Kell, Pete Anthony, Pat D'Orio, Ray Bradford and Joe Roberts. . . How important is a good punt? Boston Patriots coach Mike Holovak puts it this way: "It's the most underrated weapon in pro football. If you've got the guy who can punt the ball in the air and make the other team start at its own 20 all the time, it means an awful lot." . . Harlem Globetrotters appear at Orange County Community College in Middletown on Nov. 29. . . The 12th annual bow-and-arrow hunt for deer of either sex in the Howland Island Game Management Area Nov. 26. Last year more than 1,600 archers took a record 106 deer. Conservation Department game specialists feel that record may be matched during this year's one-day hunt on the 3,000-acre refuge in Cayuga county.

• An Affirmative Vote

We intend to vote for the lottery amendment not because we think it will prove the bonanza its proponents think it will be. And not because we might be naive enough to believe that all its profits, if it is successful, will be used to further education.

We will vote for it because we deplore the moral and political hypocrisy that says a person may legally bet on horse races inside a race track, but not across the street. We reject the protestations of the bleeding hearts who are piously concerned about those who "can least afford it" to play the lottery. What about the sales tax? And we've seen more than one guy blow the family groceries in taverns. And have yet to hear of one being padlocked because of it.

When you consider the hundreds of millions of dollars that annually are channeled into gambling syndicates through off track betting, basketball, baseball and football pools, policy numbers and other rackets, you should in good conscience ask yourself: why shouldn't the state get the benefit of some of this money. Why should horse racing alone be granted the respectability of the law? Is gambling moral and right because it is done within the confines of a plush race track? We don't think so. But we're not against it.

Griffith, Archer Bout Postponed

NEW YORK (AP) — Emile Griffith, the world's middleweight boxing champion, feels considerably less than good and his return title bout with challenger Joey Archer has been postponed for the second time.

The two New Yorkers had been scheduled to go at it next Thursday night in Madison Square Garden. Instead the fight was rescheduled for Jan. 23 after an examination Friday showed Griffith had suffered a torn ligament in his right foot.

"I feel lousy," Griffith said at his Kiamasha Lake, N.Y., training camp after doctors for the New York State Athletic Commission had confirmed the original diagnosis of the champ's injury.

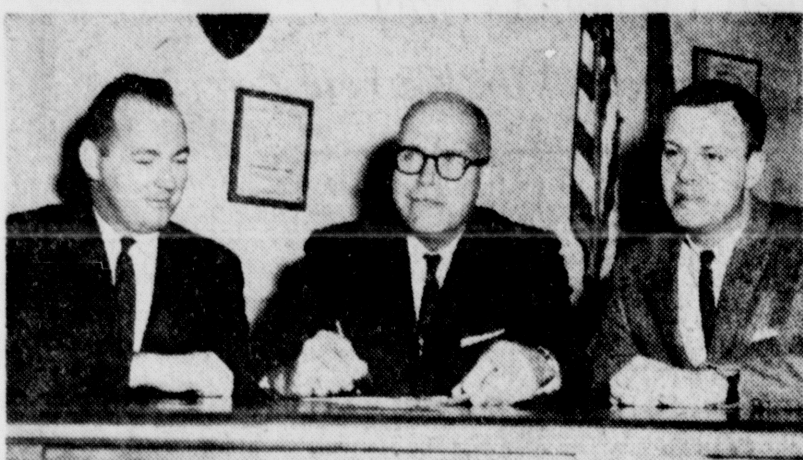

The mishap happened Thursday in the first round of sparring with Gordon Lott. "I twisted my right ankle," Griffith related. "It didn't feel bad. I started to box another round, then I felt a sharp pain in my heel."

The return bout between Griffith and Archer first was set for Oct. 21 at the Garden, but was postponed to Nov. 10 when Archer became ill with a virus. "Well, that's one and one," Archer said when he learned of the postponement.

Griffith and Archer battled first for the title last July 13 in the Garden, and Griffith retained his title on a close, controversial 15-round decision.

Monticello Team, Highland Falls Also Cop Crowns

BY ED PALLADINO

Freeman Sports Staff

Captain Al Drake finished a strong second and Kingston High School's cross country team rebounded from its sixth consecutive Section Nine Class A championship Friday at Bear Mountain.

Coach John Gilligan's talented harriers scored 47 points to top six other teams. Newburgh, which won DUSO honors, was second with 56 while Middletown, the other DUSO entry, was third with 69 points. Rockland County schools captured the final four places.

In Class B, Monticello of the DUSO League nipped Suffern by four points, 48-52. Ontario, the UCL champion, was fourth with 82 points.

Highland Falls was the Class C winner with 33 points. Highland was a surprising second with 36.

Newburgh's John Collins covered the hilly Bear Mountain course in 12 minutes, 43 seconds in capturing Class A individual honors. He led from start to finish.

Late Rally

Drake, completing three years as a KHS point getter, rallied to take second. He was fourth early in the race, advanced to third past the halfway mark and then spurred in the final 50 yards to beat Bill Seamans of Middletown for runner-up honors. Drake was timed in 13:12, one second better than Suffern.

Kingston produced depth and teamwork in winning the championship. Junior Gary Boice, never worse than seventh, took fourth place honors in 13:17. Bill Brinner knocked 30 seconds off his DUSO performance to place ninth in 13:41.

The other point producers for the KHS team were Larry Flowers and Jim Gilpatrick. Flowers advanced from his 21st place DUSO finish to snare 15th in 14 minutes. Gilpatrick, the rapidly improving soph, made the victory a reality with his 17th place finish in the field of 47 runners.

Hubbell Is 4th

Monticello's J. T. Motl managed only a third place finish in Class B but the Mounties had too much balance for the other schools. Craig Hubbell of Ontario was in fourth spot. The face winner was Bill Avenir of Suffern in 12:54.

The fourth place finish for Ontario is the best since the school was moved from Class C to Class B six years ago. Hubbell won a trophy for his fourth place finish and 10th place runner Homer Miller won a state shield. It marked the first time the OCS harriers have had two boys qualify for the State meet.

Highland Falls clinched its fifth consecutive Class C title by finishing one-two. Joe Simmons of Highland was third.

Twenty-four schools entered 168 runners in the three classes. Winning teams plus the top seven individual runners will compete in the State meet next Saturday at Chenango Valley, Binghamton.

U.S. Davis Cup Team Tabs Richey

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil (AP) — In a surprise move, Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., was named to represent the United States today in the opening match of the inter-zone Davis Cup tennis semifinal against Brazil.

The 19-year-old schoolboy was to play Edson Mandarino, Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., America's top-ranked player, was to play Brazilian ace Thomas Koch in the second match.

Richey's clay court experience and the fact he swept the entire Brazilian team last week in winning a tournament in Buenos Aires were the reasons given for the choice.

In another development, a mild fluore which was started when a Rio de Janeiro newspaper said the Americans took pep pills on the courts apparently has been settled.

The Americans scoffed at the charge and Rafael Rodriguez, U.S. team physician, said: "On hot days, they sometimes take salt tablets or glucose. This is done by players all over the world."

The winner of the series will play the survivor of the West Germany-India match for the right to challenge Australia for the Cup in Melbourne in late December.

76ers Capture 18th Straight

The Philadelphia 76ers have joined Roger Maris as asterisk members of sports' record books.

Maris, holds the record of 61 homers in a 162-game baseball season, but the asterisk separates his feat from Babe Ruth's 60 homers in a 154-game season.

The National Basketball Association 76ers won their 18th straight regular season game Friday night, beating San Francisco 134-129 behind a dazzling show by Wilt Chamberlain.

It was Philadelphia's seventh straight victory this year and tacked on to the 11 in a row that the 76ers won at the end of last season as a new NBA record.

The old mark of 17 straight shared by the 1946 Washington Capitols and the 1959 Boston Celtics stays in the book though. The 76ers' mark will carry the asterisk designation since it has been accomplished over two seasons.

In other games Friday night, Cincinnati rallied for a 120-115 victory over Detroit and Los Angeles trounced Baltimore 131-98.

Chamberlain owns a lifetime scoring average of more than 30 points a game but had been averaging only a little more than 18 points a game this season.

Recently 76er coach Alex Hannum said, "one of these nights we're going to need Wilt Chamberlain's points — and we're going to ask him to go for the baskets more."

Friday night was the night. Chamberlain scored 30 points and led a Philadelphia spurt that wiped out an 11-point San Francisco margin in the final period.

Wright, Jessen Women Leaders

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — A hole-in-one by newcomer Lesley Holbert of Miami, Fla., couldn't give her the lead but it did put her just one stroke back of the leaders — Mickey Wright and Ruth Jessen — after the first round of the $10,000 Amarillo Open Golf Tournament.

Miss Wright and Miss Jessen, both top veterans with Miss Wright the all-time leading money winner, entered today's second round of the 54-hole tournament with one-under-par 70s.

It was a remarkable score for the kind of weather they played in Friday — high wind and temperatures in the low 50s.

Miss Holbert, who played golf at Odessa, Tex., Junior College and is on the tour her first year, got the hole-in-one on the 187-yard 17th at Amarillo Country Club, using a three-iron.

Her 71 left her tied with Carol Mann, another top veteran, for third place.

Kathy Whitworth, the year's leading money-winner, soared to a 76 and was six strokes off the pace.

The tournament winds up Sunday.

Snow Storm Halts Racing at Batavia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A snowstorm canceled racing at Batavia Downs Friday night at the same time that a track accident resulted in a "no finish" decision in the feature race at Saratoga Raceway.

As a result, Mighty Mathilda at Roosevelt held the spotlight to herself in New York state harness racing with a 2:04 victory in the $5,000 pace.

The 5-year-old mare defeated Kufra and Palette and paid $26. At Saratoga, eight trotters started in the feature but none finished. A rack spokesman said it was the first time in the track's 25-year history that a race had ended in such a fashion. The $17,875 wagered on the race was returned to bettors.

Track officials said the two leaders went down at the top of the stretch, apparently when the sulky wheels became locked. The other six entries ran into the leaders, causing a pile-up that took all entrants out of competition.

No horses were reported injured seriously. A driver, Frank Jevons of Cohoes, N.Y., was injured and taken to Saratoga Hospital, where he was treated for a broken wrist.

At Batavia, meanwhile, the snowstorm forced the third cancellation in recent years at the track because of weather. Previous closures were a year ago and in 1957.

Friday's night 10-race card, featuring a $4,500 invitational will not be rescheduled, officials said.

Top Small College Team in Key Tilt

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) —

North Dakota State puts its No. 1 small college football ranking on the line against San Diego State tonight before an expected crowd of 35,000 in Balboa Stadium.

The Bisons, winners of 24 straight and 8-0 for this season, previously defeated two second-ranked colleges, Montana State and the University of North Dakota.

The Aztecs, 6-0, hope to come out on top via their explosive 1-formation offense that features quarterback Don Horn and receivers, Haven Noses and Craig Scoggins.

The Bisons are also known as the Thundering Herd and the reason is evident in running backs Ken Rota, Mike Belmont and Mike Hasbarger. The trio has gained a total of 1,076 yards this season.

Coach Don Coryell's Aztecs feature breakaway runners in Don Shy, Teddy Washington and Nate Johns. Johns, who averaged 8.1 yards a carry last year, will make his first appearance in five games because of a leg injury.

The overweighed Aztecs will be battling a Bison defense that surrendered an average of 29 yards rushing and 98 yards passing against eight opponents.

David L. Lawrence Suffers Seizure While Addressing Political Rally

PITTSBURGH (AP) — David

L. Lawrence, Democratic kinsman whose behind-the-scenes power helped elect presidents, lingered near death today after suffering a heart attack while addressing a political rally.

Lawrence, 77, former governor of Pennsylvania, was in critical condition in Presbyterian-University Hospital.

He slumped to the floor before an audience of some 3,000 Friday night just as he was starting a speech at a Democratic rally in Pittsburgh's Syria Mosque.

The lecturer toppled across his chest. Associates rushed to his side as the audience fell into a stunned silence.

Gave State to JFK

Perhaps the greatest achievement of Lawrence's long political career was his considerable role in delivering Pennsylvania to the late President John F. Kennedy in 1960.

Kennedy polled a 300,000-vote plurality in the state.

Lawrence was an early backer of every Democratic nominee for president from 1928 on. In 1932, he helped engineer the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Lawrence was elected mayor of Pittsburgh four times, leaving City Hall in 1958 to run for governor.

Doctors said Lawrence's heart stopped twice Friday night and that both times he was clinically dead.

When he collapsed, a doctor stepped up from the audience and massaged Lawrence's heart. A nurse gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. The second heart stoppage occurred at the hospital.

Witnesses said Lawrence fainted after he started to talk. He seemed to weaken. Some men steadied him and he appeared to be ready to resume his talk, then he went down.

Just before he fell, he said, "I've never been more proud of the Democratic party than with the unity we now have."

Return Stolen Car

Alert action by two State Troopers on routine patrol from the Newburgh barracks resulted in the return of a stolen car exactly one-half hour after it was reported missing from the owner's driveway Friday. According to authorities, Raymond Van Voorhis, 28, of Clarkview Road, Newburgh, notified them that his 1964 auto had been stolen from in front of his home at midnight Friday. Arrested at 12:30 a. m. by patrolling troopers, R. M. Koemmer and R. J. Caola, was David Coble, 16, of Union Avenue, Town of New Windsor, who was spotted driving the vehicle in New Windsor. Troopers recovered the car and arrested the youth, who was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Edward Leahy. He was committed to the Orange County Jail, pending grand jury action.

New Aircraft Enters Fighting In Viet Nam War

DA NANG, Viet Nam (AP)

Marine A6A all-weather bombers have entered the Viet Nam air war. They flew their initial combat missions Friday.

The A6A Intruders flew 11 missions against enemy anti-aircraft gun emplacements and suspected rice caches in the northern provinces of South Viet Nam.

Lt. Col. Howard Wolf, 42, of Oxon Hill, Md., is commander of the first squadron of Marine Intruders that landed in Viet Nam Nov. 1 from Cherry Point, N.C. The Navy has been flying Intruders from aircraft carriers off Viet Nam for some time.

The Intruder, a two-man, subsonic jet with a maximum speed of about 690 miles an hour, is designed for close support of ground troops through all kinds of weather both day and night. The craft has "a very sophisticated radar-weapon system," Wolf said.

The twin-engine jet can carry up to 15,000 pounds of bombs and fuel, but is not equipped with defensive cannons or machineguns. The Intruders do not require fighter escorts, however, Wolf said "because we fly in an environment that discourages fighters."

Wolf's bombardier-navigator, Capt. Robert Mize, 28, of Schuylerville, N.Y., said he believes the Intruders "will fulfill a need that other aircraft couldn't handle before. We will be able to give the troops the help they need despite the weather."

Try Refloating Sub

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Efforts to refloat the U.S. submarine Tiru, aground since early Thursday on a coral reef off Australia's northeast coast, were reported hampered today by seven-foot waves.

The submarine reported negligible damage and said it was in no immediate danger. None of its eight officers and 72 crewmen were hurt.

The Australian navy troop transport Sydney was standing by.

Three other vessels were on their way to Frederick Reef, 330 miles from the port of Mackay, to help the Tiru.

The Australian navy said in Canberra the sea prevented small boats from approaching the 1,526-ton sub to attach tow lines.

Recognition Move Shelved

A move to recognize a Rhodesia government-in-exile was shelved because Rhodesia's two feuding nationalist groups, Zanu and Zapu, could not be reconciled and Zambia was reluctant to provide a seat for such a government.

The heads of state are to convene this evening with their ministers still having failed to approve a Rhodesia policy.

The likely outcome at this stage would appear to be another resolution condemning Britain for failing to use force in Rhodesia.

Urged Peaceful Solution

U.N. Secretary-General U. Thant, in a message prepared for the opening of the summit meeting, urged the African leaders to find peaceful solutions to their problems.

He told the OAU that world peace required "urgent international action" on the problems of South-West Africa, race discrimination in South Africa, colonialism in Portuguese African territories and the Rhodesian situation. But, he cautioned, the solutions "will have to be peaceful."

The African summit was to be formally opened by Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia.

From a mural at his right shoulder the portraits of the OAU's 31 founders will look down at him from branches of a symbolic tree. Of those 31 leaders who signed the OAU charter three years ago 11 no longer are in power.

The Arabs were among the first to invent a cannon that used gunpowder.

Annual African Summit Meeting Torn by Dispute

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia

(AD) — Africa's annual summit conference meets today with a bitter dispute between Ghana and Guinea threatening one of the biggest rows in the troubled three-year history of the Organization of African Unity.

Ghana detained 19 Guineans in transit through Accra on their way to the preliminary Council of Ministers meeting here a week ago. Ghana insists it will release them only when nearly 100 Ghanaians allegedly held in Guinea are released.

Mission Unsuccessful

A three-nation OAU mission, which flew to Accra and Conakry to try to resolve the dispute, has met with no apparent success.

Ghana's military leader, Gen. Yakubu Gowon, is due here today. But Guinea's President Sekou Toure has said he will not come as long as the Guinea delegation is detained in Accra.

All hope of unanimity at the conference was wrecked by the Accra incident.

After a year that has seen the OAU torn by dissension over Rhodesia, distracted by military coups and shaken almost apart by the overthrow of former Ghana President Kwame Nkrumah, the African leaders had hoped the summit would restore some order to their ragged ranks.

To Prepare for Summit

The weeklong ministerial council meeting which was to prepare the way for the summit meeting has demonstrated more disunity than unity.

African ministers from 38 countries — newly independent Lesotho and Botswana are the latest OAU members — squabbled bitterly over almost every issue.

Ethiopia and the Somali Republic quarreled over the future of French Somalia. Tunisia led an attack on the 11-nation Liberation Committee entrusted to plot the overthrow of Africa's remaining white-ruled nations.

Recognition Move Shelved

A move to recognize a Rhodesia government-in-exile was shelved because Rhodesia's two feuding nationalist groups, Zanu and Zapu, could not be reconciled and Zambia was reluctant to provide a seat for such a government.

The heads of state are to convene this evening with their ministers still having failed to approve a Rhodesia policy.

"SPILLING THE SALT"

BAD LUCK: To spill the salt is sometimes regarded as a sign of bad luck or that a fight is near at hand. The idea got started from the portrait of the Last Supper drawn by Leonardo da Vinci, in which Judas is shown spilling the salt.

First Snowfall Swamps Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Western New Yorkers began recovering today from an early-season storm that dumped up to two feet of snow in at least one section, while hampering transportation generally.

While the forecast called for clearing skies today, the Weather Bureau held out the possibility of more light snow tonight and Sunday, with temperatures in the 30s.

Centimiles south and east of Buffalo received the heaviest snowfalls, with reports of a foot or more on the ground frequent. Buffalo's south side was unofficially said to have received upwards of two feet.

Roads leading outside the city, however, were closed for varying times, and abandoned automobiles were a common occurrence.

Skidding cars and resulting accidents also were common.

To the east, hazardous driving conditions forced postponement of Friday night's harness-racing program at Batavia Downs. It was only the third time in the last 10 years that weather had halted action at the oval.

Flights to and from the Buffalo Airport also were delayed. The Buffalo Bills of the American Football League were more than seven hours late in departing by air for the balmy climes of Miami, where the team will play the Dolphins Sunday.

Later, however, both ground and air transportation began moving back to normal schedules.

Electric power also was restored to nearly 15,000 customers in Niagara County, who experienced blackouts for hours when the storm, accompanied by high winds, struck Thursday night.

Elsewhere in New York State, the weather was reported clear and cold. Some North Country points, however, also reported snow of up to eight inches, and forecasters predicted some snow flurries for Lake Ontario shore communities as the day progressed.

Killed on Thruway Near Tuxedo Park

TUXEDO PARK, N.Y. (AP)—Paul L. Miller, 27, of Brooklyn, was killed Friday night on the New York State Thruway near this Orange County community when the car he was driving ran off the roadway and crashed into an embankment, police said.

His wife, Barbara, 25, suffered slight injuries. She was listed in fair condition at Good Samaritan Hospital in Suffern. Miller lived at 915 E. 17th St.

Girl Killed by Auto

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—An 8-year-old girl was killed and her younger sister was injured Friday when they fell from their family's automobile as it rolled down the driveway at their home in the nearby town of New Scotland.

Kathleen Snyder was killed, and her sister, Cheryl, 5, was cut and bruised. She was reported in fair condition at Albany Medical Center Hospital.

State Police said the girls were in the car with their parents, when their father parked the auto, got out and started walking toward the house. As the girls started to leave the car, it rolled back, troopers said.

The girls' parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Snyder.

Hits Telephone Pole

Ellenville State Police investigated a one-car traffic accident Friday night at 11:30 p. m. on Berne Road, just outside of Ellenville. Investigating Trooper Frank Steiner said the driver of the automobile involved was Robert Horvath, 29, of Ellenville, who went off the side of the one-lane road and struck a telephone pole. Horvath reportedly received facial lacerations in the mishap, as did his passenger, Susan Irwin, 22, of Ellenville. Both were taken by ambulance to Ellenville Community Hospital, where they were treated for injuries.

Rocky Charged With Neglect

By LYNN C. NEWLAND
Associated Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, N.Y. (AP)—Frank D. O'Connor, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, says Republican Gov. Rockefeller has "neglected" the people, while the governor predicts victory from what "I feel in my bones from the people."

While Rockefeller and O'Connor stepped-up their attacks against each other Liberal party candidate Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. walked through Jewish communities in Brooklyn Friday and Conservative nominee Paul L. Adams went home to Rochester to nurse a sore throat.

Motorcade Planned

Today, all four major candidates were to campaign in the New York City area, with Adams' camp planning a motorcade through the streets of Manhattan.

O'Connor's charge that Rockefeller had forsaken the people came during a news conference at the Albany County Airport Friday night enroute to a speaking engagement in Saratoga Springs.

Rockefeller had "totally neglected" the people, O'Connor said, especially in Upstate New York, "because he was too anxious and too intent on running for higher office."

Swipe at Presidential Try

This was a reference to the governor's attempt to win the GOP presidential nomination in 1964.

The New York City council president also denied that he would try to raise the state sales tax if elected or that, as Rockefeller has claimed, he would introduce tax reforms that would effect a cut in aid to education.

"I urge the people of Upstate New York to see through this scare propaganda to the men behind it who grow desperate as they see their days of power drawing to an end," he said.

Campaigned With Bobby

Earlier in the day, O'Connor campaigned with Democratic Sen. Robert F. Kennedy through Polish, Puerto Rican and Negro areas.

In Harlem, O'Connor was greeted with a chorus of boos, while Kennedy was cheered. A local official of the Congress on Racial Equality said he arranged the anti-O'Connor demonstration because of the candidate's stand against a civilian-dominated police review board.

Rockefeller, who devoted a considerable part of Friday making television films and conferring with campaign workers, as he will today, told a news conference that he was leading O'Connor by three per cent, according to a Rockefeller-financed poll.

For the first time in the campaign, Rockefeller expressed optimism, when he said, "I feel in my bones from the people that the tide has changed and my campaign is gathering momentum."

Two Cars Collide

Cars operated by Roger Rangier, 106 Abrayn Street, and Thomas Ricketon, 22 Taylor Street, were involved in a mishap on Friday at Washington Avenue near Hurley Avenue, according to city police.

No Arrest Made In 1-Car Mishap

Highland State Police reported a one-car highway accident Friday night, in which no arrest was made, and the arrest of another automobile operator on charges of driving while intoxicated. Troopers said the accident, in which two people received personal injuries, occurred Friday at 11:30 p. m. on Route 44-55 in the Town of Lloyd, when a car operated by Joseph Gersch, 18, of Vineyard Avenue, Highland, rounded a left turn while traveling west, left the highway and struck a tree. Investigating Trooper Edward De-Rosia said Gersch had a lacerated hand and his passenger, Terrell Burke, 17, of 17 Main Street, Highland, suffered various contusions. Both were treated at Vassar Brothers Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

The Highland barracks also reported the arrest Friday night of Dennis O'Connor, 39, of 286 Mill Street, Poughkeepsie, on

ABC Newsmen Ready for Final Gemini Space Shot

While most of the nation has its eyes trained on the upcoming elections, at least two young Americans are aiming much higher.

U.S. Navy Captain James Lovell, Jr. and U.S. Air Force Major Edwin A. Aldrin, Jr. will cast their ballots on Election Day and the following afternoon, Wednesday, Nov. 9, will blast off on a four-day mission into space that will mark the twelfth and final flight in the successful U.S. Manned Gemini space program.

Highlights of the Gemini 12 mission will be reported live on both the ABC Television and Radio Networks.

ABC News Science Editor Jules Bergman will anchor the color coverage on ABC-TV, reporting direct from Cape Kennedy on Launch Day and from ABC News' elaborate space headquarters in New York's Colonial Theater during the remainder of the scheduled 94½-hour mission.

ABC Radio News' coverage will originate from Cape Kennedy with newsmen Don Allen and Charles Osgood manning the anchor positions.

On Launch Day, Wednesday, Nov. 9, ABC-TV will provide continuous live color coverage of the unmanned Atlas-Agena target vehicle lift-off from 2 to 2:30 p. m., EST. Scheduled launch time for the Agena is 2:15 p. m., EST.

Coverage will resume on ABC-TV at approximately 3:30 p. m., EST, with live color pictures of the manned Gemini capsule launch scheduled for 3:53 p. m., EST. ABC-TV's coverage of the launch phase of the mission will conclude when the capsule has achieved its pre-determined orbital path.

One-minute status reports will be aired throughout the evening and a minute-and-a-half recap program will be fed to the ABC Television Network at 11:06 p. m., EST, with a repeat at 11:16 p. m., EST. ABC-TV affiliated and owned stations across the nation will have the option to use either one of the recaps as part of their own locally originated newscasts. Similar recaps will be offered to the network on Thursday and Friday nights, Nov. 10 and 11, at the same times.

On Thursday, Nov. 10, one-minute reports will also be aired on ABC-TV at 2:30 p. m., EST, and 8 p. m., EST, and on Friday, Nov. 11, one-minute reports will be presented at 2:30 p. m. and 9 p. m. EST.

On Saturday, Nov. 12, ABC-TV will utilize the ABC Newsline (crawl) to keep the public informed of the progress and condition of astronauts Aldrin and Lovell.

On Splashdown Day, Sunday, Nov. 13, ABC-TV will resume continuous coverage at 1:30 p. m., EST, and will stay on the air until the astronauts have been safely returned to the recovery aircraft carrier. Live television pictures from the downrange recovery area will highlight this phase of the coverage.

The ABC Radio Network will take the air on Launch Day at 2:05 p. m., EST, just ten minutes before the scheduled lift-off time for the unmanned Agena target vehicle. Coverage will conclude temporarily when the Agena has achieved orbit and will resume at 3:30 p. m., EST, for a live report of the manned Gemini lift-off.

First day coverage on ABC Radio also includes a five-minute status report at 6:25 p. m., EST, and continuous coverage of the rendezvous and docking maneuver from approximately 8:20 to 8:40 p. m., EST.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 10, 11 and 12, ABC Radio will broadcast five-minute progress reports at 10:30 a. m., 4:30 p. m., 6:25 p. m. and 8:30 p. m., EST.

Continuous coverage of astronaut Aldrin's "extra-vehicular activity" experiment (EVA—walk in space) will be heard live on ABC Radio Friday, Nov. 11, from noon to approximately 12:54 p. m., EST.

On Sunday, Nov. 13, ABC Radio News will present a special five-minute report just hours before the astronauts are scheduled to return to earth. The network will cover the re-entry and recovery phases of the flight starting at 1:45 p. m., EST, staying with the story continuously until the astronauts have been safely recovered.

Joseph Keating is the Executive Producer of ABC Radio's coverage of the Gemini 12 flight. The Managing Editor is Nick George.

Walter J. Pfister, Jr. is the Executive Producer for ABC-TV's Gemini 12 coverage, with Robert Rogow serving as producer. The associate producer is William Jackson and the director, Marvin Schlenker.

At Cape Kennedy, the ABC News producer will be William Vance with W. P. Fowler as director. Producing at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston will be Larry Goldstein. Bill Gill

Wherever he has appeared, the popularity of Roger "King Of The Road" Miller is as contagious as the common cold to many in the audience.

"There's no known cure once you've been exposed. You simply let him run his course," is one fan's comment.

Miller's current course, discounting frequent excursions into the areas of recording, composing, music publishing, night clubs, fair engagements and personal appearances, is the NBC-TV variety program, "The Roger Miller Show," seen Monday evenings in an 8:30-9 p. m. Eastern time colorcast.

And it wasn't too long ago that someone tagged the 29-year-old ex-farmboy, "The most unheard-of-entertainer I ever heard of."

As Miller himself puts it: "My career catapulted off to a slow start and from there it steadily dwindled."

That's not quite true. Miller came off the launching pad in 1964, courtesy of Nashville, and has been in orbit ever since.

His fans come in all shapes and sizes, from the Romper Room set to senior citizens, and in sophistication from hip to hick.

Miller considers January 19, 1966, as his television birthdate. Though he had previously guest-starred on a handful of programs, it was on that date that NBC showcased the unknown quantity from Oklahoma in an unprecedented half-hour special. The critical and numerical response sparked creation of the weekly Roger Miller show.

Both NBC and Miller followers received an unexpected bonus when his program hit the air. While noted for his musical acumen, he proved, too, to possess a hair-trigger sense of humor of which few people were aware.

Some liken it to the style of Will Rogers. A great deal of it is ad lib. It is laced with the satire and philosophy which reflect Miller's poverty-stricken background.

He jokingly refers to himself as, "The newest addition to the vast wasteland."

To him, "Phyllis Diller is just another pretty face."

He calls television, "Chewing gum for the eyes."

Advised that his program would be in competition with the Lucille Ball show, Miller suggested calling his show "I Try."

"You'll note that we haven't spared any expenses on this show," he told a reporter. "We hired an 81-piece trio just to provide the music."

Guiding the show: Dwight Hemion directs and co-produces it with Gary Smith. Between them, Hemion and Smith have piloted some of television's most-talked-about programs, including last season's Frank Sinatra and Barbra Streisand specials.

Hemion and Smith have brought to Miller's show the look of a weekly special, though it's only 30 minutes in length. They believe in simplicity of format and refuse to "junk up a program with dancers and lavish sets which tend to de-emphasize the skills of the performers."

Guest stars are carefully chosen for their ability to complement Miller's unique talents.

Roger Miller is, in many ways, a paradox. Individuals frequently find themselves at odds with each other when they attempt to describe him. Is he strictly a Country and Western type, or is he ultra-sophistication?

He's probably somewhere in-between.

Robert "I Spy" Culp calls him the greatest lyricist of our times. Andy Williams referred to him as, "The greatest thing since corned beef hash."

The head of the department of psychology at Trinity College uses Miller's record albums to teach perception to his students.

Other descriptions of Miller include "he's a Jekyll and Hammerstein," "the missing link between country and pop music" and even, "a new art form."

One critic accused Miller of "putting the world on" because of his unique style and offbeat lyrics. Such charges he vehemently denies.

"My music comes from the soul," he remarked, "and I guess God just gave me a funny soul."

Singer, composer, lyricist, musician, humorist and cracker barrel philosopher, Miller has won a record number of Grammy Awards for his recordings—11—in two years on the national scene.

Three of his albums, "Roger Miller/Dang Me," "The Return of Roger Miller" and "Roger Miller/Golden Hits," have netted him gold records, indicating million-plus sales. His single of "King of the Road" shot far beyond the million record mark within a few weeks after its release.

Miller was born in Fort Worth, Tex., but calls Erick, Okla., his home. His early life was not spent in the lap of luxury and its tribulations can often be found in some typical Millerisms:

"My home town was so small that the city-limit signs were back-to-back."

"The population is 1,500, including rakes and tractors." "My Daddy and I fought the war on poverty and lost. We were actually prisoners of war."

"We were so poor you had to spell the word with five o's." "We had this rapid transit system but one day it broke its leg and we had to shoot it."

"We were Oklahoma land barons. We had some of the most barren land in the territory."

He can also get philosophical about his childhood.

"We were dirt poor. I used to keep warm by crawling inside myself and making up stuff." "Success is something you save for, like an expensive watch. You've got to care for it. If you break it, it's hard to replace." "When your poor, your always thinking about what you'll do when you get a lot of money. And when you get it, you can't seem to remember what it was you wanted so desperately."

Miller, who jokes that he even "flunked school bus," did quit school after completing eighth grade. He spent three years in the Army carrying a rifle and driving a Jeep, mainly in Korea.

Following his discharge, he gravitated to Nashville, the capital of Country and Western music.

He worked at odd jobs for a time and it was Ray Price who ultimately recorded one of the many tunes Miller penned, "Invitation to the Blues." The song connected and Miller was given a full-time job composing and recording for the Faron Young Organization.

It was during that period that he composed "Hey Little Star," "You Don't Want My Love" and "Lock Stock and Teardrops," all country and western hits.

Since then he has turned out such moneymakers as "England Swings," "Dang Me," "Chug-a-Lug," "You Can't Roller Skate in a Buffalo Herd," "Do-Wacka-Do," "In the Summertime," "Husbands and Wives," "Kansas City Star," "Engine Number Nine" and more than 500 others.

Miller moved to southern California in 1964 to study acting. He checked in and out of a dramatic course so fast that the instructor never met him. His recordings had started to hit and there was no time for the acting lessons.

He is married to the former Leah Kendrick of San Antonio. They have a year-old son, Roger Dean. The Millers live in Woodland Hills, Calif., about 20 minutes via freeway to the NBC studios where he tapes his program. It's a sprawling, one-story home formerly owned by Clint Walker.

"We're furnishing it in early Jeeter Lester," says Miller. But his wife's exquisite taste and his own selection of antiques belie the crack.

Nixon to Voice Election Views Sunday on ABC

One of the Republican party's leading spokesmen, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, will make his last nationwide television appearance before the Nov. 8 congressional and gubernatorial elections when he appears on ABC News' Television and Radio Program, "Issues and Answers," Sunday, November 6.

Appearing only two days before the November elections, the former Vice President will be interviewed live in New York by ABC News Political Editor William H. Lawrence and ABC News State Department Correspondent John Scali.

Mr. Nixon, who lost in his bid will be the ABC News Houston correspondent.

Meteorologist Jim Smith of ABC's Baltimore affiliate WJZ will keep the viewing public aware of weather conditions at the Cape and also in the downrange Atlantic recovery area.

for the presidency to the late John F. Kennedy in 1960 in one of this country's closest Presidential races, is considered by political experts a front-runner for the Republican Party's 1968 Presidential nomination.

Regarded as a master in the art of political campaigning, Mr. Nixon has been engaged in one of the most extensive campaign drives in behalf of Republican candidates for office this November, and has predicted huge gains for his party in the House of Representatives, in the U. S. Senate and in State capitals across the country.

The former Vice President, who earlier served as a member of the House and as a Senator, has been increasing his attacks on the Democrats as election day nears. Mr. Nixon has called for stronger efforts in Viet Nam, has said that President Johnson is holding off a tax increase until after the elections and that New York Senator Robert F. Kennedy is a likely Vice Presidential candidate for President Johnson in 1968, at the expense of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

No Central Authority

Chet Huntley, who narrates The Aviation Revolution, set for NBC-TV on Nov. 7 says he reached one major conclusion after doing the show. "There is no central authority for airlines. It is a big industry growing like Topsy. In another few years, we will have supersonic transports, and no one is making any central plans to handle them. Some day airline people will wake up and there will be total chaos."

"Today, to get a new airport, authorities must deal with 1,200 agencies, from township up to federal. The FAA may have to have its powers extended so it can come to an area and say, 'This is where the airport will be.'"

"Can you imagine three jumbo jets disgorging 500 passengers each into an airport in the matter of a few minutes—and no cabs to get the passengers to the city?"

Behind Clown Is Smiley

HOLLYWOOD — Bobby Kaye turned on the rain.

It was a hot smoggy day and Bobby explained, "It cools the place off." The rain was just a mist, spraying down from pipes over the indoor tropical planting in the dining room of his home.

What Bobby Kaye really turned on was a torrent of circus lore, tradition and history.

Forty years in show business, most of them as a circus clown, had won Bobby the title of "Clown adviser" on Red Skelton's Clown Alley special due on CBS-TV Nov. 9.

The hour special is a tribute to the buffoons of the circus world with "guest clowns" otherwise known as Amanda Blake, Bobby Rydell, Jackie Coogan, Audrey Meadows, Robert Merrill, Vincent Price, Martha Raye and Cesar Romero.

For fun-loving Bobby the special was a chance to re-live memories of a canvas-covered world and to re-create long famous and classical clown acts. To Red's guest stars he taught such routines as "fire and water" (one pail filled with water, another with confetti) "the butter-fly" (tissue paper attached to a buggy whip), "the sharp-shooter" and scores of others which will be seen on the show.

Bobby is proud to claim the words "the show must go on" originated in his circus world.

"But not because of money," he explains. "A circus is timed to the second and the performers waiting in their dressing rooms take their appearance cue from the band music. Every act has its own music. If an act doesn't go on the next act won't be ready."

Bobby says there are three types of clowns — the august (overly dignified) the tramp (totally real) and the carpet clown, a combination of both for the circus with a small budget.

"The word carpet clown originated with circuses which could afford only one clown and one bareback rider. With only one bareback rider, the ring needed only one carpet on which the rider stands to take bows after his act."

Red Skelton, he says, is a carpet clown because he knows all the tricks.

During taping of the special, Red took delight in having Bobby explain to his guest stars why the high box office window became traditional.

"They built 'em high," Bobby explained, "so customers couldn't see their change when buying tickets. In the early days short changing customers was an accepted practice."

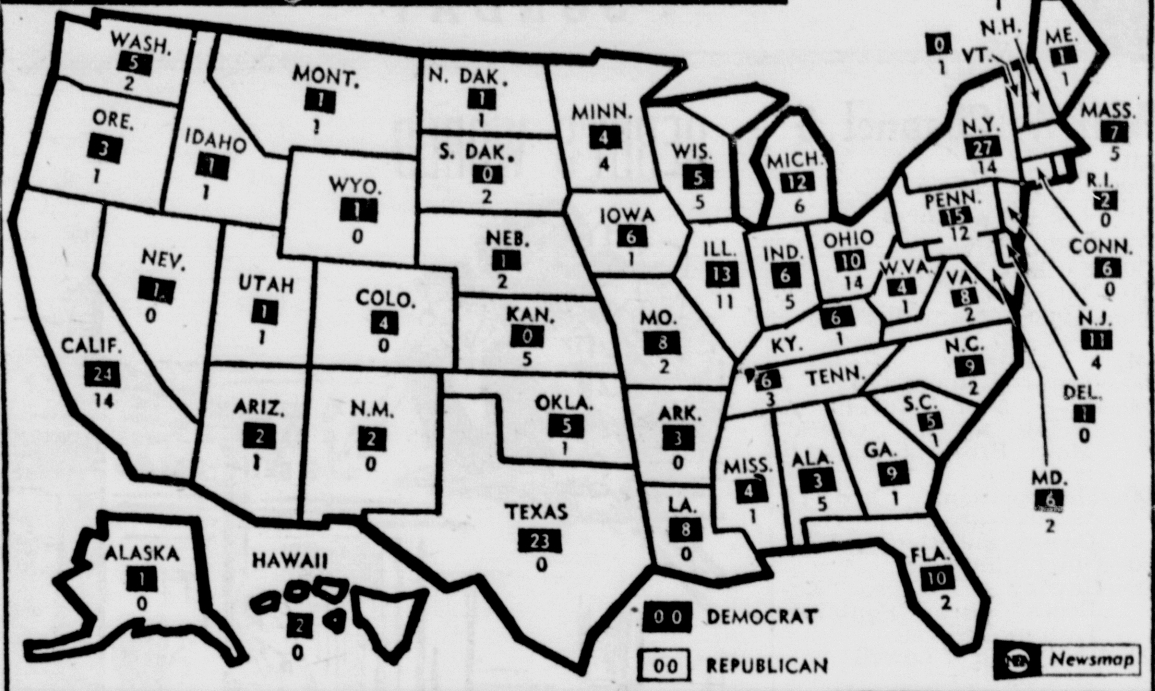

The son of a Lewistown, Pa., doctor, Bobby's real last name is Smiley. He changed it when he became a circus clown.

"Who," he smiles, "ever heard of a clown named Smiley?"

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Republicans stand to make their most significant election gains in the House of Representatives—now divided 294 Democrats and 139 Republicans with two vacancies—where all 435 seats are at stake in the Nov. 8 voting. Campaign attention focuses on some 50 so-called "freshmen," first-term Democrats from normally Republican districts who rode into office on the Johnson landslide two years ago and are given major credit for providing the votes that pushed the President's Great Society legislation through Congress.

Larry Harmon In Clown Role

By BILL BYERS

NEW YORK — You would think that after 16 years Larry Harmon, who now sports a mop of fluffy white hair, would be tired of being Bozo the Clown.

But have you ever heard of anybody getting weary fo a million dollar enterprise?

This is what the clown has meant to Harmon, who invented him in 1950. He has been busy ever since teaching others to be Bozo. In one recent week, he flew over 6,000 miles setting up schools in Nashville, Little Rock and Grand Rapids.

He also has trained Bozos for children's TV shows in Japan, West Germany, Mexico and Norway. And he has ambitions to have the clown entertaining on channels in France and Saudi Arabia.

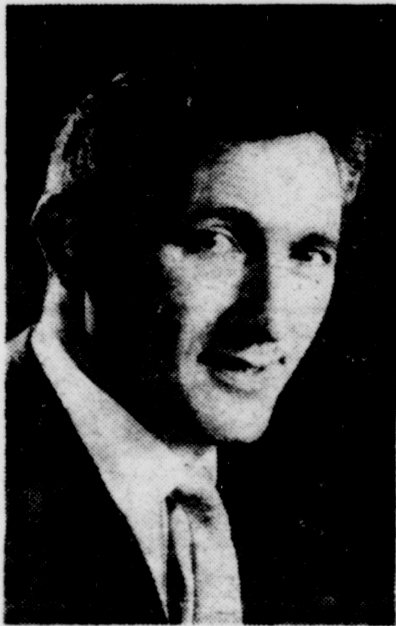

All of this, plus selling the rights of Bozo's face for food and toy products, have made Harmon a very wealthy man, indeed.

The other day, he stopped in New York long enough to say why he thought the clown had been such a success.

"I like to make people laugh. As an individual, I couldn't on my own," he said. "Bozo is universal. He has no race. No creed. Everybody can identify with him."

One of the clown's biggest admirers was Caroline Kennedy and Harmon has pictures of her when her father was in the White House. She is clutching a big Bozo doll.

"When I see a kid I light up like a refrigerator whose door has just been opened," continued Harmon. "I love children and I think they know this. To be a good clown you can't kid a kid."

Harmon who has two youngsters of his own (a boy, 12, and a girl, 8) recently purchased another enterprise to keep the tykes happy.

A good friend of the late Stan Laurel, he was awarded the producing rights of all future Laurel and Hardy cartoons.

"To me, they were the master clowns," said Harmon, with a wry smile.

TV Repairmen On Channel 17

An actual test of the competence and ethics of television repairmen, in which three housewives from different economic groups call for repair of the same set, will be seen on Channel 17's consumer advice program YOUR DOLLAR'S WORTH Wednesday, November 9 at 8:30 p. m., repeated Sunday, November 13 at 4 p. m.

The half-hour program explores the prevailing belief that fraudulent practice and incompetence occur frequently in television repair. It contrasts the overall situation with that in California, where a state electronic repair bureau was recently established to safeguard consumers against fraud.

The opening segment is devoted to the ethics test, and reveals that makeshift work, overpricing, and the installation of unnecessary parts do occur in television repair. The program then goes on to present Consumers Union rating of various brands of television sets on the basis of repair frequency. Among those appearing on the program are representatives of various television manufacturers, who comment on their company's rating (which range from good to poor); California Attorney General Thomas Lynch, who explains why television repair fraud flourished at one time in that state; and Dan Weston, head of the new electronic repair dealer registration bureau, who describes safeguards against fraudulent practice.

"Your Dollar's Worth" is a monthly series produced by National Educational Television (NET)

The life expectancy of the porpoise has been estimated at 30 years. The porpoise, a mammal which breathes air directly and suckles its young, differs from the dolphin only in that it is smaller and does not have the characteristic bottle nose of the dolphin.

German Accent

Those who were present are still laughing over a line Otto Preminger spoke to the director of the Batman episode in which he was appearing as Mr. Freeze. Seems Preminger, who seldom acts these days, read in the script that a line had to be delivered "in a thick, guttural German accent." Preminger looked at the director and said, "I will disregard zese instructoins. I will say it in my own voice."

'Solo' Cool One Off Screen, Too

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The aplomb with which Robert Vaughn plays Napoleon Solo on "The Man From U.N.C.L.E." is not entirely due to the actor's craft. He is a cool one off the screen as well.

You get the impression from the meticulously groomed Vaughn that he could handle any situation, whether it's the latest perfidy of THRUSH or the taunts of hecklers who attack his real-life opposition to the Viet Nam war. He is articulate and well-read, without the pretentiousness of actors who are Johnny-come-latelies to matters of the intellect.

Has All the Answers

Vaughn has all the answers on matters concerning his career. Does he chafe under servitude to a television series?

"Not at all," he replied airily. David (McCallum, his sidekick Illya) and I were discussing our lot last Friday as we watched the show on television. We both agreed that we were lucky to have the show.

"Before 'U.N.C.L.E.' we were both moderately well-known actors. The series not only made us prominent but gave us a bargaining power. The extent of that bargaining power was demonstrated when I did a feature, 'The Venetian Affair,' last summer. In 10 weeks I earned as much as I earn in 10 months in television."

Sees 5-Year Run

Vaughn said both he and McCallum expect to remain in the series five years, which he now figures to be its life expectancy — "If a series can go into its third season with good ratings, as we are doing, it's a pretty safe bet it can last two more."

His contract ends after five years, and then he would try his luck as a star of features.

But what about the long-time argument that movie audiences won't pay to see heroes they have watched for long seasons on television? Vaughn has an answer for that one, too. "Yes it's true that only three have made it— James Garner, Steve McQueen and Dick Van Dyke, though Van Dyke is not proven yet. I feel that I might have a good chance because I don't play a definite occupation in the series. If I were a lawyer or a doctor or a cowboy, I might become more firmly entrenched in the public mind as a certain character."

Snow for Peyton Place

It's now snowing in Peyton Place, as the series films its winter scenes. On the day that the prop men spread the snow around, Southern California temperatures hit 94 degrees.

TV Shorts

Chet Huntley, who narrates the NBC-TV special, The Aviation Revolution, set for Nov. 7 says he believes the program will help viewers discover that "pilots and planes have gone as far as they can go in technological excellence. But control on the ground, overcrowding and getting to and from the airport are still problems."

During the show, a trip from Orly Airport in Paris to Kennedy Airport in New York is detailed from "the time the trip is a plan in someone's mind to landing. Viewers will get a notion how much planning, concentration and care goes into each flight. There is nothing haphazard about it," Huntley said.

Are you ready for this? A series is making the rounds called Sheriff Who? John Astin as Evil Roy Slate is the star, and the format is not what a western fan might expect. Seems a guest sheriff will be killed every week if the series is sold. And that's a consummation devoutly NOT to be wished.

Sergio Franchi has a busy round of TV appearances ahead of him. He'll be on with Danny Kaye and Dean Martin in December, and will be co-host of The Mike Douglas Show for a week in January.

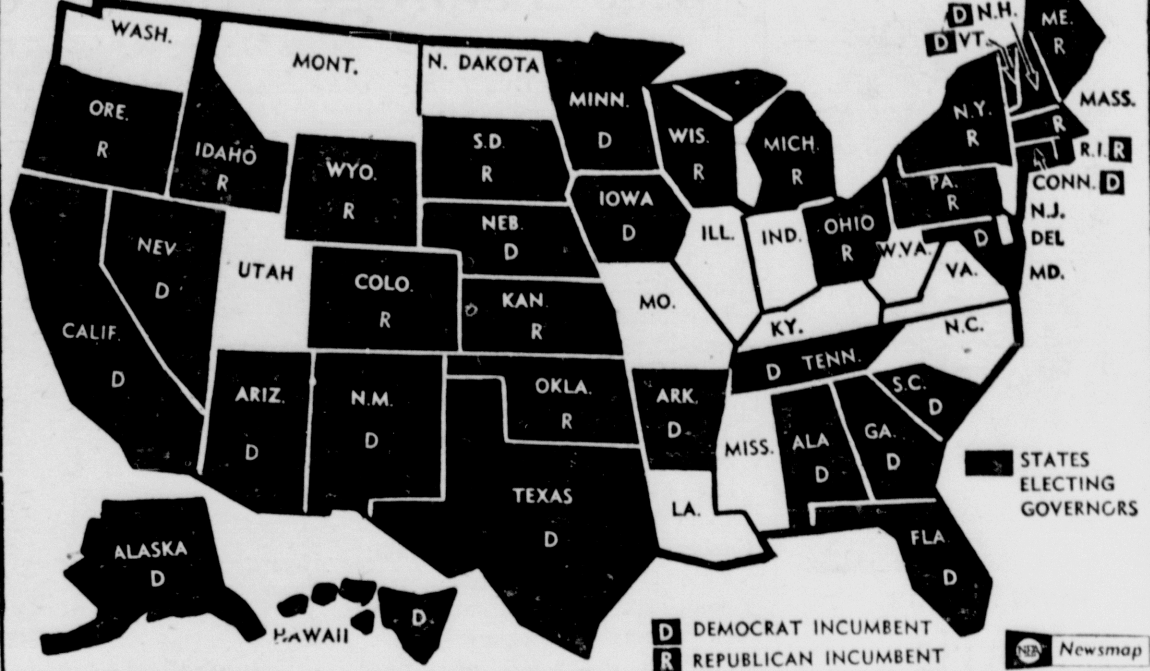

Color television sets have been more or less perfected in the last year or two, but color television technicians haven't as yet.

Seems there are processing labs in Hollywood, Miami, New York and Chicago. Bosses, watching film processed in all areas, began noticing deeper flesh tones in film processed in Hollywood and Miami. They investigated and discovered that technicians in those two sunny areas are used to seeing people with deep suntans, and they process the film accordingly.

Paul Burke, star of 12 O'Clock High, went through an obstacle course rigged with favorite Viet Cong booby traps recently. Seems his series was filming at Camp Pendleton, and he decided to see how much he remembered from his military training.

Burke told TV Scout the series helped him. Seems before he began playing a World War II pilot, he was very anti-airplane. He flew, but only when he had to, and with little enjoyment. But now things have changed. "We do so many shots in the series with me in the cockpit, and a process screen behind me showing the sky, that I now figure when I'm really flying, it's just another process shot. That way I relax."

GREG MORRIS

Greg Morris Advances Quickly

HOLLYWOOD — You probably first became aware of Greg Morris when a classic TV show remembered as "the baby swap" gave Dick Van Dyke and Mary Tyler Moore the most frenzied 26 minutes of their five-year series.

Morris played a charming, tall and handsome Negro father who welcomed an heir within a few minutes of the birth of Dick and Mary's son and later, over the telephone, Dick insisted the hospital had switched babies on them.

The role for Greg Morris, who almost became a collegiate basketball star instead of an actor, was one of many giant steps for him in a career that advanced quickly and easily.

From campus actor at the University of Iowa, he stepped into a West Coast starring role ("A Raisin in the Sun") in his first professional job. Since then he has appeared in 40 TV shows and this year he is one of the co-stars—the electronics expert—on the CBS-TV series, Mission: Impossible.

A trip to the West Coast from his home town of Cleveland five years ago was a spur of the moment vacation for him before going to New York where he hoped to make a name for himself in the theatre.

But he never made it to New York.

His role in "A Raisin in the Sun" on the West Coast stage established him as an actor of dynamic powers and led first to motion pictures ("The New Interns") and then to television.

Except for fate Morris today might be a basketball star. He enrolled at the University of Iowa because he idolized the university's coach Bucky O'Connor.

But six months after Morris' arrival on campus, O'Connor was killed in an automobile accident.

"I lost interest in basketball after that," he explains. "I had enrolled in a drama-radio course and now when I look back I think maybe acting was it with me even before I realized it."

Just before college Morris served two years in the army, much of the time in West Germany.

He is married and the father of three children.

STATION BREAK

Miss Teenager to Be Crowned Tonight Over CBS

BY BILL MYERS

NEW YORK—This time of year pert chickadees from all over the country are heading South for the Miss Teenage America Pageant in Dallas. The winner will be crowned over CBS-TV tonight at 10 p. m. (Nov. 5).

The other day five of them stopped off to roost in New York for a couple of days and talked about the wonders of being young. And about television.

The birds were from Boston (Allyn Warner, 16), Syracuse (Carol Camenga, 16), Cincinnati (Vickie Gutin, 17), Philadelphia (Donna Battista, 17) and New York (Kerri McCloskey, 16).

"TV's a big waste of time," said Allyn, a lithe brunette. "The networks must be kidding or think their audiences are made up of nothing but 10-year-old minds."

Her lovely companions agreed. The new math was much more of a challenge than TV, they said.

Shows like Get Smart and I Spy did offer them some amusement. And if their opinions are any indications of the way to-day's youth thinks, The Man From U.N.C.L.E. and Batman, which Miss Teenage America contestants of last year enjoyed, are on the way out.

They all made funny faces of disgust when The Girl From U.N.C.L.E. was mentioned. It was evident the new series wasn't even worthy of comment.

The girls were equally brutal on the new fashions. None wore a miniskirt and all were against the mod look.

A couple did speak up and say their mothers thought the short, short skirts were "cute" and had been pestering their daughters to try them.

"I guess you might say we are just old fashioned," said Carol. "Too many older people think we think only in terms of boys, television and fashion. Wouldn't they be surprised if they knew we also thought about the Democrats and the G.O.P.?"

All had ruffled feathers when it was suggested that the Dallas pageant was only for pretty birds.

"Don't you know we had to take a test to get into the competition?" said Donna. "We're all in this to see if we can win a scholarship. Brains, not beauty will count."

Never Be 70

Lovely quote from Eva Gabor, who was made up as a 70-year-old woman for a sequence in CBS-TV's Green Acres. Someone asked her how it felt to be 70 and she said, "I'll never know, darling. 'I'll never be 70, even if I live to be 100.'"
